

steps to a recruiting office to enroll your name; then consider the loyalty of the man who will travel more than two hundred miles across mountains and ravines, taking all sorts of chances, facing every danger, traveling immense distances, to enroll as a Union soldier. It meant much to him, and when we gather here rejoicing for the great State of New York and for other northern or western States, as we see proper to call them, let us not forget the loyal southern man.

I have been delighted and instructed since we left New York and I think yesterday's exhibition of the feeling of the ex-Confederates should tell to all of us that the war is over and that the sanctity of our flag is safe; that its future is secure, and that no hand, whether domestic or foreign, can ever be successfully raised against it. (Applause.)

STORY OF ONE REGIMENT, THE 85TH NEW YORK

By COMMISSIONER BURDICK

On April 20, 1864, at Plymouth, N. C., after three days of sanguinary fighting, four hundred sixty-three enlisted men and thirty officers of the 85th N. Y., with other troops, constituting Wessel's brigade, were surrendered to the Confederate forces of General Hoke. Eleven of the 85th had been killed and forty-three wounded. All the wounded who could walk were taken with the uninjured to Andersonville, Ga., where the most of the Plymouth garrison arrived on April 30, 1864. A few of the more severely wounded were brought in as soon as their wounds had healed sufficiently so that they could be transported.

In the early part of September, after the fall of Atlanta, most of the living members of the regiment were transferred to Charleston, S. C., where, with many other prisoners, they were held for a little over four weeks on the old racing park grounds, when the living were sent to Florence, S. C., and held in another stockade until General Sherman had captured Columbia, when those who could walk were taken to Goldsboro, N. C., whence on February 27, 1865, all were paroled and sent to Wilmington, N. C.

During the time the regiment was held at Andersonville, 176 died and were buried there. Of the regiment, while held as prisoners of war, three hundred and eleven gave their lives as martyrs to the cause of human liberty. To-day, as nearly as can be ascertained, seventy of the one hundred forty-five who survived the horrors of that year are alive; sixty-seven of these enlisted in the fall of 1861 and were continuously in the service from the day of enlistment to the day of discharge. Every one of these men was on the fighting line during the four days of the battle at Plymouth.

On April 26, 1914, thirty-one of the survivors of Andersonville, members of the 85th, as an organization went with the other New York ex-prisoners on the pilgrimage to the dedication of New York's monument at Andersonville. These men were veterans, having served nearly four years during the great conflict, and having been in seventeen different engagements, besides many scouting scenes and skirmishes. Very few indeed of the volunteer soldiers were shirks or cowards. They hurl into the teeth of their maligners the assertion that "they were skulkers" for every one was on the firing line doing his best for his country. To-day every one of those who went to Andersonville in 1914 is an honorable man, doing his part in making our country great, and, as truly as it may be said of most of those who could not go with us, they are worthy citizens to-day as they were good soldiers then.

ADDRESS BY COMMISSIONER BURDICK

My comrades, fifty years ago to-morrow we entered the stockade at Andersonville, 463 members of the 85th regiment among those prisoners who carried the musket, on the 1st day of April, 1865, the last ones left, excepting those who are lying out yonder. One hundred and seventy-six of the 85th New York are buried in this cemetery. One hundred and thirty-five of them are buried somewhere else in other southern cemeteries. Three hundred and eleven men from the 85th regiment, all told, died as prisoners of war, the largest number from any organization in the United States.

Twenty-four years ago we attended services here on Decoration day, and Mrs. Burdick read the poem from the stage over yonder, "A Pilgrimage." To-day she wished very much that she might be here, but for five years she has been an invalid. She is not able to walk, but her mind is here with us to-day.

Commissioner Burdick then read the poem written for the occasion by Mrs. Martha A. I. Burdick, who had two brothers and her husband (Commissioner Burdick) in Andersonville prison:

A TRIBUTE OF HONOR

The rolling tides of peaceful years
Have laved and smoothed the war-ridged crests
Of lands where sleep our buried slain
. With still hands folded on their breasts.

Time dulls the edge of keenest grief,
But neither time nor tide can dim
The altar fires that God hath lit
And guarded by love's cherubim.

Enshrined within our hearts, we hold
The loving memory of those Whose lives were sacrificed to save
The Nation from mistaken foes.

We rear our monuments inscribed
With Honor's tribute, richly due
To those who kept the Union whole
When War his vengeful trumpet blew.

Here where we stand with reverent feet,
With heaven's blue dome above us spread,
A silent, sleeping army waits
The resurrection of the dead.

The constellations of the skies
Stand guard above these voiceless halls
Whose marble doors swing ever back,
And where no martial bugle calls.

These men were prisoners of war,—
Our sires, our brothers, and our sons,—
Made captive at the battle's front
'Mid clash of arms and booming guns.

Within the prison pen they bore
Till death the agonies and woes
Whose harvest the grim reaper gleaned,
Whose aftermath no mortal knows.

No sword or gun or bayonet
Lies by the side of those who sank
Unarmed and unresisting here,
Unknown to fame or fortune's rank.

They died, and yet they might have lived —
Might have escaped their awful lot —
If they had bartered loyalty
For their release, but they would not.

True to the pledge of patriot sires,
Ten thousand heroes perished here,
And generations yet to come
Their names shall honor and revere.

A rescued Nation tribute pays
In sculptured stone and letters bronze
Whose words shall tell to coming years
The record of her martyred sons.

Build to the skies, if thus ye may,
Oh, loyal freemen, true to trust,
Build marble towers and granite domes
Above these ranks of silent dust.

Float, starry banner of the free
Forever float, undimmed, above
Our altar fires whose incense bears
To heaven our pledge of ceaseless love.

Our garlands of forget-me-nots
 With amaranths of fadeless bloom
 We twine with tear-wet laurel wreaths

Sweet Peace with snowy wings shall guard
 This spot where sleep our loved and lost,
 And a saved Nation teach her sons
 What victory and peace have cost.

The monument we dedicate
 For the Great Empire State this day
 Acknowledges in eloquence
 The debt of love she cannot pay.

But monuments and laurel crowns,—
 All symbols and all eloquence,—
 Can never voice the sacrifice
 That only God can recompense.

Our stricken hearts, our lonely homes,
 Our pride in valor and in worth,
 We leave with Him within whose hand
 Are held the destinies of earth.

Time bears us onward and will bring Eternity's glad dawn at last,
 With Heaven's pure light to overshine
 The midnight shadows of the past.

I have copies enough of the poem. Mrs. Burdick wanted them given to each of the comrades here present and any of the friends who may want them; enough for every one. (Applause.)

(A rising vote was taken in honor of Mrs. Burdick and thanks for her poem was unanimous.)

ADDRESS OF COMMISSIONER I. M. FOSTER

MR. CHAIRMAN, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, COMRADES:

This is a sacred day, a sacred service. Echoes from the past break in on my heart. Visions stand out before me, brighter and clearer than the leaves on these trees. I will not permit myself to go into the past and say much about this prison.

Some things that relate themselves to this prison, to the experiences of men here, shall live as long as time rolls by. It was a splendid thing to save the Union, but, comrades, do not misunderstand me when I say, we fought for two years and did not win a battle under the cry, "The Union must be preserved," but out of a woman's heart and a woman's brain, touched with the finger of God, we came to face the great truth that was underlying the conflict at that time.

Great principles were involved in the war, principles that touched not only the lives of those in our own land, but the lives of men everywhere on earth who felt the heel of tyranny upon their necks. We were bearing to the future, and pushing out to the front, the interests that related to all men for all time. Better that a nation die than the truth should be crushed forever. Better that Spain be destroyed than that Cuba should be crushed. (Applause.) And so I am just going to say a few words concerning what these men fought for.

I am going to show you how true those men were who were in this prison. God never made men truer than the men imprisoned here. Loyalty was their god, and devotion to the principles of righteousness. Those old prison walls! I can see them as distinctly as I see these trees. The groups of men on every side pass before my vision now, and the gates are open yonder. It is about eleven or twelve o'clock. Coming at the gate yonder are a dozen or fifteen Confederates, splendid men in form and physique, and they go about among the prisoners making offers — and many had the opportunity; you have heard it, every one of you.

See that poor fellow over there? The brightness of the noonday sun is shining upon him. Visions of beauty are taking form and shape before him. See the smile that plays upon his features. Yonder in the vision that rises before him is the old homestead, and on its porch his gray-haired father and mother, waiting for his coming. Just at the gate yonder stands his wife, looking and longing for his return, and on the lawn yonder are playing the children of his love and life.

He is not in prison now. He is home again. The vision is taking shape and body before him, and the smile fills his features as he steps into the embrace of his father and mother and feels their kisses, and the children climb up in his arms, their arms about his neck, and their voices ring in his ears, sweeter than the voices of angels. Ah, he is not in prison now. Gone are all thoughts of the prison in the vision that has arisen before him.

His mother says, "Dinner is served," and there is his accustomed place, and he takes his old seat again. In his thought and in his heart he bows his head, as his father lifts his voice in prayer of thanksgiving to God for having preserved his son and brought him home again. He is not in prison now.

Yes, he is lying over yonder. Aroused from the dream by the offer of the men that come in at the gate: "Take the oath of allegiance to the Southern Confederacy and we will feed you; we will clothe you. We will bring back health and strength. We will make the vision real in the future."

And I can see him now, as, his eyes snapping fire and spurning with contempt the offer, he says: "What? I take the oath of allegiance to the Southern Confederacy? What? I strike against the old flag? Yes, this is a fearful place we are in. We are suffering and starving and dying here, but before I take the oath of allegiance to the Southern Confederacy I will lie here and rot and die and be forgotten by my father and mother and wife and children, before I will take the oath of allegiance to the Southern Confederacy, or raise my hands against the stars and stripes." (Applause.)

And I tell you, comrades, that is the kind of courage God Almighty honors and humanity crowns; the kind of courage no battlefield produces.

A COMRADE: Right.

COMMISSIONER FOSTER: Right? I can demonstrate to any unprejudiced mind that it is the kind of courage never uncovered on a battlefield. There is one thing to help a man when he goes into battle. Yes, there is: pride of a man's heart, lest he be called a coward. No man cares to be called a coward. Do not smile when I tell you one thing: God Almighty never made a woman who would marry a coward if she knew it. She will follow a drunkard down the street, thinking she can make him a sober man. She will follow a criminal to his cell, thinking she can bring him back to honor and manhood. She will relinquish everything dear to her soul for the man she loves, but she will spurn a coward as a poisonous viper.

Yes, and if any of you fellows hear an old soldier say he had no fear when he first went into battle, that is proof he never saw a battle. (Applause and laughter.)

A COMRADE: Right.

COMMISSIONER FOSTER: God never made a man who is not afraid of bullets. Because a man is a little timid and afraid, that is no indication of cowardice. Brave men fear danger and leap into its very jaws in obedience to duty.

If I had five minutes more I would just use a little illustration of myself. I am going to steal a minute or two. You see where I made a point is this: We came in on eastern time and I am talking on Georgia time, and that gives me an hour.

A COMRADE: We will give you more, anyhow.

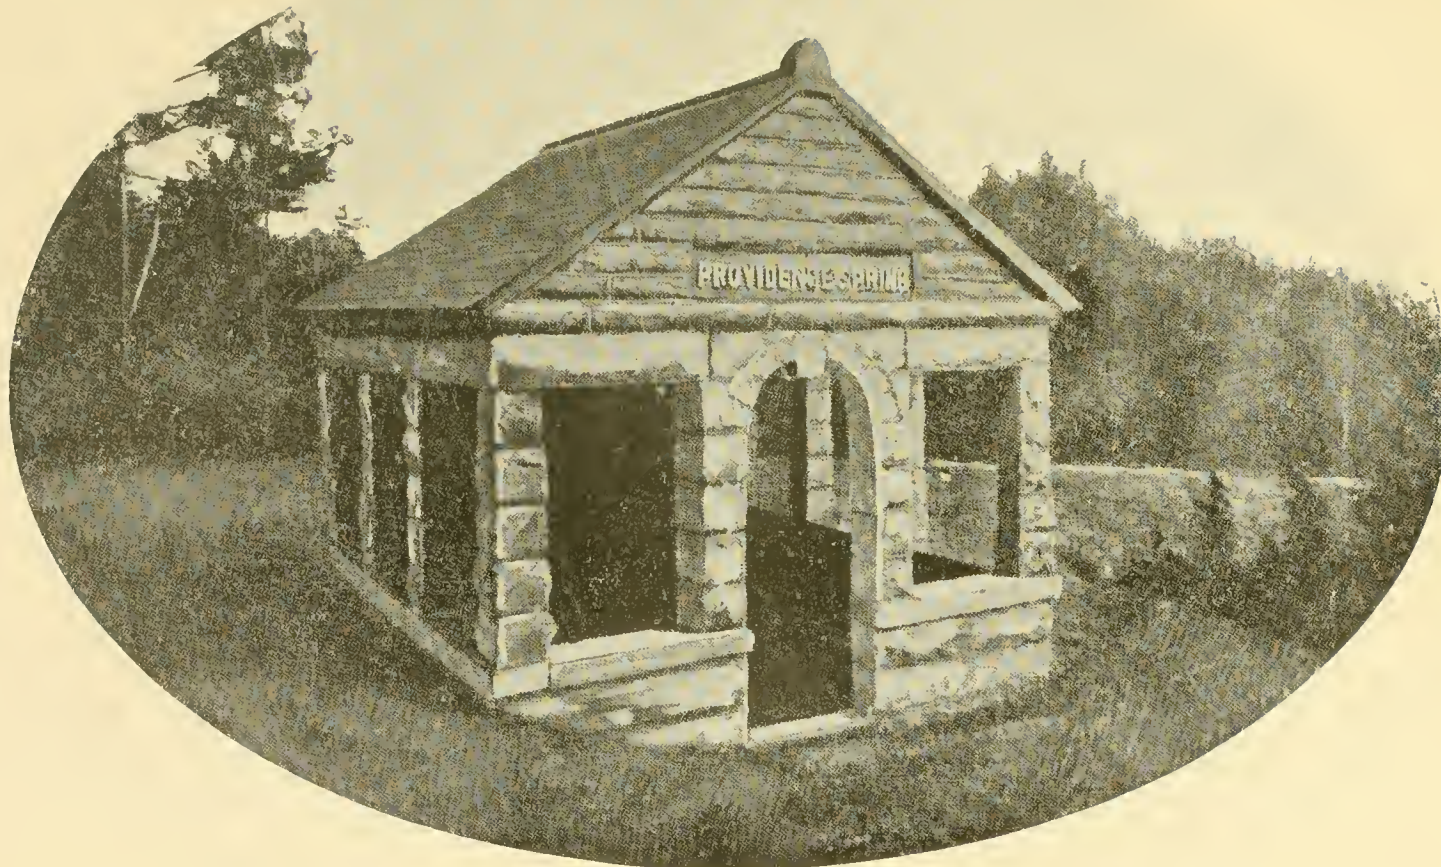

COMMISSIONER FOSTER: I am going to take it anyway. I was just going to say a word about cowardice and fear. They deployed us into the line of battle at the battle of Chancellorsville on the hill. Somebody blundered. They frequently do, you know. We should have been deployed at the base of the hill. Chancellorsville was not my first fight. I had been among the men crossing into Fredericksburg and rushed up those stone walls. I knew about war before, but something that day, I do not know what, happened to me, and my knees caved under. The guns opened fire just yonder and my whole form trembled. Twelve pieces of artillery opened fire on us and began to drop on us, and I said to Mould, the orderly sergeant, "I (stuttering) do not know what's the matter with me. I cannot stand still." Yet when we charged those twelve pieces of artillery I did keep my place in line with the rest of the men. (Applause.)

That helps a man in battle,—the pride of his own heart. And there is another thing that helps men in battle: that is the privilege of striking back. Every man of you rise and tell me you are going to attack me. My hands and limbs are free and I may run the gauntlet and escape; but bind my hands and my feet and throw me on my back, and then tell me you are going to attack me and there is nothing left for me then but to wait your approach. That was our condition in prison. And there is another thing that helps a man in battle: that is the possibility of victory and triumph. My brigade, Mr. Chairman, took Little Round Top at Gettysburg. I saw Pickett's charge. I can hear the echoes come down resounding through the generations past of that marvellous triumph when we lifted the flag so high above the smoke and dust of battle that all the nations of the earth could see it and were impressed with the majesty and magnificence of our strength.

There is something wonderful in the possibility of victory, but you fellows knew the feeling I refer to, when we were lying over yonder and those men came and offered the privileges of returning to life, or returning to health, of looking once more upon your homes, or staying there and eating a pint of meal and water, and another pint of meal and another pint of beans — that was all. That was all they gave us. I say those men were true in a condition and in a situation which exalted the old flag, in the demonstration of the fact that we had established forever the truth of human rights and individual liberty.

We were not fighting for the black man nor the white man. We were fighting for manhood, and we were declaring to the nations of the earth that because a man is a man, and because of that fact, the God Almighty set a stamp of manhood upon him — I would rather be a

PROVIDENCE SPRING AT ANDERSONVILLE AS IT IS TO-DAY

Probably the most interesting feature of this historic locality is what is known as "Providence Spring," thus appropriately named by the heroes of Andersonville. The story is universally familiar and will continue to live in history as one of the most intensely interesting episodes of the Civil War. When the famishing soldiers had reached that critical moment when they could not much longer endure, with naught but the contaminated water of the creek to sustain them, during a severe electric storm, this living stream broke forth, bright, pure and sparkling, bringing renewed life and hope. Its opportune appearance may be easily explained from natural causes, yet it will always be recognized as an especial evidence of the infinite power and mercy of Divine Providence. Not only was it providential that this supply of pure water should come at this time, but also that it came from within the "dead line," where by the prison laws it was protected from being trampled and deiled. Over this spring the National W. R. C. has erected a beautiful pavilion, tile-roofed and supported by granite pillars, with cement floor, thus perpetually preserving it from the elements.

The sacred waters now flow from a tastily carved fountain of marble, at the spot where they originally burst forth, the gift of the National Prisoners of War Association. The stream is still flowing, as in days of yore, and will continue to flow on forever, ready to refresh all who come, with its cool, sweet waters. The hallowed memories which cluster about it shall endure until the lapse of time. Let him who drinks from this sacred fountain bow his head in reverence.

man than an angel. I would rather have a good right arm than an angel's wing. It is not written anywhere in the Book that man will ever be anything but man through all eternity — redeemed manhood. God has appeared to men in the past, always in the form of man; God met the prophets and sat with them in their tents, but sat with them in the form of man. We approach the throne in the name of the Man, Jesus Christ, and it was in the interest of common humanity that we fought for the grand old flag. It was in the interest of mankind for generations to come that men suffered and gave their lives in the interest of truth. It meant something.

How kind and true some men were to us in the past. I am a Methodist minister. I have lived in a Methodist parsonage on second-hand furniture all my life. (Laughter.) That is right. I have just moved from one parsonage to another within the past month and there is not a new thing in it. Only a new house and a new man and a new wife and a few of my things; that is all. My father was a Methodist minister before me. I am not introducing anything religious into this at all. It is not in any sense a religious worship, but I will never forget — and there are many of you who remember — those hot days of July and August. I have forgotten the names of two or three of those Catholic priests that came in to give us cheer and help.

A COMRADE: Whelan, Hamilton and Clavereul.

COMMISSIONER FOSTER: I speak of them, and there came to my mind to-day these words I found written in the Book: "Other sheep have I that are not of this fold." And if loyalty to the spirit that is Christly, if the uncovering of the heart that is divine, if the charity of the hand that flashed like an incandescent light with its faith and its cleanliness, is to give expression of loyalty to that which is divine, then these men came to comfort us and lay hold with the fingers of God.

It is a great day. What education this is to stand here, beneath the shadows of these trees, in the presence of the dead, and hear their voices as they speak to us of duty and responsibility and future opportunity. Here it is that we are drilled in the principles of loyalty, of patriotism, of truth, and of devotion. Here it is that we marshal the hosts of the United States.

Oh, yes, England has sustained continuously a standing army of two hundred and fifty thousand men to maintain her peace. France has a standing army of a couple of hundred thousand men or more to maintain her peace. Germany has a standing army of some five or six hundred thousand men to maintain her peace at great public expense. Russia has a standing army of six or seven hundred thousand men to sustain all the time at great public expense to maintain her peace. We have got a little, insignificant army of about sixty-five thousand men stretched from ocean to ocean and from the lakes to the coast, and from sea to sea, and we span the globe. Sixty-five thousand, did I say, Mr. Chairman, is that about right? I am mistaken. My mind was a little more quickened just now. We have an army of men — 3,000,000, or 4,000,000, or 5,000,000 of men — and we gather them together on these great days, by the side of men who sleep, and drill them in the principles of righteousness and truth and loyalty to government, and so magnificent is the standing army of this great nation, drilled by the graves of men who have sacrificed their lives that its power might be upheld, so magnificent is this, that the nations of the earth stand aloof and the old flag we unfurled floats out without fear and without thought concerning the possibilities of the future.

God, help us to be true. One other word. I have come to know my friend, Mr. Hinman, splendidly. I have read some things about him and I took occasion to say to him yesterday that what I did desire to say — and that is the only thing I had thought out to say to-day — is this: that what he said was true in that magnificent speech he gave us in Richmond when he warned against the dangers that line along the path of anarchism and socialism and these various teachers against individual liberty; but the greatest danger, comrades and fellow citizens, is not, to me, along that line. I endorse everything he said and believe all he uttered to be true, but I believe the nation's greatest danger lies in its departure from the morals of God's laws; that when vice shall rule in place of truth, and when men shall wink at iniquity, and when men shall disregard the commandments of God, then shall the foundations of the nation crumble and decay. In the history of the world, from Babylon to Jerusalem, from Jerusalem to Rome, and from Rome to the fall and decline of the Spanish power, there is not recorded a single instance of the overthrow and destruction of upright and God-fearing people. Vice and iniquity alone represent the ruin of nations; and if we shall be as true to God and truth in the future as in the past; if we shall strike out in the things that come with the devotion to loyalty that has characterized the men now sleeping in this cemetery here, we have nothing to fear.

Oh, yes, I saw the men that were hung here. I could stand here until the shadows go down and tell you of the experiences of prison life, but that is not mine to do. I would not encroach upon the program of the day. It is a privilege to stand here. It is a benediction to stand here. I brought my wife and children to see the spot where I fought, bled, and died several times. (Applause.) Yet they all say I am one of the liveliest corpses they ever saw. At the same time it is a privilege that we cannot express, in our appreciation of it, to be permitted to come here, fifty years after our departure. Fifty years have rolled away and the men who were here are nearly all gone, but we are here, thank God.

If we shall be as true in the future as we have been in the past, the history of the decline and fall of the American republic will never be written. If Christians shall be loyal to their Maker; if philanthropists shall go forth on errands of mercy; if patriots shall be true to their high calling, then it shall never be said that the ocean was dug for our grave, or that the grass grew for our shroud, or that the mountains were reared to monument our departed glory, but the old flag we love so well shall wave on and wave ever, until its starry folds shall glow resplendent in the glories of the last day.

God help us to be true. (Applause.)

ADDRESS BY COMMISSIONER McCULLY

MR. CHAIRMAN, LADIES, GENTLEMEN AND COMRADES:

Much has been said and written about the great Civil War, but there still remains much to be told and recorded. History gives us no parallel of its horrors, especially the sufferings of those who were confined in the southern prison pens. Of the nine thousand from the State of New York who were confined in this prison, ninety-seven per cent have gone to the eternal camping-grounds, and the other three per cent are rapidly following.

On the 2nd day of September, 1864, General Sherman entered Atlanta. The Confederates here thought he was going to send his cavalry to release us, and began as soon as possible to remove us; ten thousand were sent to a stockade at Florence, S. C. On their arrival at Charleston, S. C. (enroute), the first one thousand were put in an open space of ground in front of a large public building in the center of the city and a double guard placed around us. The next morning there came into the camp some Sisters of Charity; they talked with some of the boys and went away. The following morning they came with a wagon-load of bread; two of the Sisters filled their arms and attempted to go through the guard line, when one of the guards said, "We-uns got orders not to let you-uns go in thar." One of the Sisters replied, "Well, sir, do your duty and thrust us through if you will, and we will do our duty and feed these starving men," and she went like a shot past that guard (applause), and distributed the armful of bread. Then she went back, and they concluded it would be difficult to get through as a body, so they went to the wagon and loaded their arms with bread, came over to the lines and threw it over the heads of the guards to us. That is what the Sisters of Charity did for us in Charleston that day. (Applause.) At that time, our gunboats were shelling the city. The shells went over us and on all sides, but none entered the camp. We were there about two weeks, waiting for the stockade at Florence to be finished, and during that time not a shot dropped into our camp. We concluded those gunners knew our location, hence no shells reached us.

Day before yesterday, Senator Palmer in his remarks referred to the Sisters of Charity and their kindness to the prisoners at Belle Isle in Richmond, and I recall what he said, that although he was not of the same faith, he never met a Sister of Charity to whom he did not take off his hat. I simply add to what he said, that I hope the dear Lord will bless here and everywhere the Sisters of Charity; and I can say with Senator Palmer that I, too, am not of the same faith. I never see one of them, however, but that it brings back to me recollections of what happened in Charleston. (Applause.)

Great honor and credit has been given to the men of the Civil War, and too little to the noble women whose mental sufferings were ten times greater than our physical and mental combined; and we who were here in Andersonville know what that means. Just one or two references to their part in the war and I am through.

A woman in Massachusetts, Mrs. Bixby by name, had five sons. They all went to war; they were all killed. On the 21st day of November, 1864, President Lincoln went into the Secretary of War's office. The Secretary said: "Mr. President, I have just received a report from the Adjutant-General of the State of Massachusetts, who informs me that Mrs. Bixby's last son of five has been killed." What did the President do? With his great sympathetic heart, he sat down and wrote Mrs. Bixby as follows:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,

WASHINGTON, November 21, 1864.

To Mrs. Bixby, Boston, Mass.

Dear Madam:

I have been shown in the files of the War Department a statement of the Adjutant-General of Massachusetts that you are the mother of five sons who have died gloriously on the field of battle. I feel how weak and fruitless must be any word of mine which should attempt to beguile you from the grief of a loss so overwhelming. But I cannot refrain from tendering you the consolation that may be found in the thanks of the republic they died to save. I pray that our Heavenly Father may assuage the anguish of your bereavement, and leave you only the cherished memory of the loved and lost, and the solemn pride that must be yours to have laid so costly a sacrifice upon the altar of freedom.

Yours very sincerely and respectfully,

A. LINCOLN.

In the city of Chicago, we have a Federal judge who was born about the time of the battle of Kencsaw Mountain. His name is Kenesaw Mountain Landis. He is the judge who fined the Standard Oil Company $29,000,000 and is a brother of the Hon. Charles E. Landis, M. C.

Their father, Colonel Landis, raised and organized a regiment and with him he took four of his brother Jacob's boys. At the battle of Stone River in 1863, the last one was killed. On looking for him the next day, he found him on the battle-field, dead. He sat down and wrote the family, consoling them as best he could, and closed with these words:

Dear Brother Jacob:

This will be a sad blow to you, this being the fourth boy that you have given to your country. But in your sorrow you have this consolation: They died fighting for the best country on which the sun has ever shone.

Those words were true in 1863. They are true to-day in 1914. This is the best country on which the sun has ever shone (applause), and that flag, with its beautiful stripes and bright stars; that flag, with its emblematic color of red, white and blue; that flag whose folds protect alike the foreign and American born, and represents the country of free schools, religious liberty, and equal rights to all, is the best flag on this earth to-day. (Applause.)

ADDRESS BY COMMISSIONER BROWN

MR. CHAIRMAN AND REPRESENTATIVES OF THE STATE, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, COMRADES:

I want to say I am very glad I am here on this occasion to participate in the dedication of the beautiful monument that stands there. I was one of the first that entered that prison. I was not then sixteen years old; I passed my sixteenth birthday there. As I said, I am glad to be with you and do all I can to make this occasion memorable. I thank you, Mr. Chairman, for calling upon me. My voice is troubling me and I ask you to excuse me. I thank you for your attention. (Applause.)

ADDRESS BY COMMISSIONER MACKENZIE

MY COMRADES AND MY FRIENDS:

That is all I have in this world now — comrades and friends, and I hope and trust that every man who wore the blue or the gray is a comrade of mine (applause); and every person who acknowledges God is a friend of mine.

I do not know what I can say here. I may have a voice, but I have not the ability of some of my commissioner friends. However, I want to tell you this: I would like to impress upon your minds that which was impressed upon mine fifty years ago — my first fight. Comrades, you know what the fight was; friends, I hope you will never know such a fight.

I remember when we were pushing to the front, when I heard the shots of the advance guards, when we saw the Confederate cavalry come to meet us, when we went and met them, and “they were not ours.” (Laughter.) That was our first march on to Fredericksburg. We called it Falmouth.

From that time until after the battle of South Mountain, we were on the firing line. Then we came back into Virginia and I was captured. I remember the trip over the Virginia Central road from Orange courthouse around down to Richmond; the night and day in Libby prison; the winter on Belle Island, the six and a half months down here in Andersonville prison. I remember leaving this place, going to the Andersonville station, back to Milen, and then going back to Savannah and getting aboard the old "New York" with the Star-Spangled Banner flying over my head.

Comrades and friends, I thought that was the grandest hour of my life. That was fifty years ago, but to-day I stand before you and I tell you that this is the grandest hour of our lives. (Applause.)

The war is over, thank God, and we are all comrades and we are all friends, and my prayer to Him who rules everything is that we shall ever be comrades and friends. (Applause.)

SENATOR PALMER: Now one moment, your attention. The services reminiscent are over. If you will follow our guidance for the next hour or so the medals will be given you. We will return for the formal unveiling and dedication of the monument, and you will have an hour or two hours to ramble around here amid the graves of your comrades before you entrain yourselves to depart. I am anxious you shall have, each man undisturbed, two hours to himself.

The medals will be conferred upon you in the prison pen.

WITHIN THE PRISON STOCKADE

12:30 P. M.

PRESENTATION OF MEDALS

The veterans having been assembled in military order within the prison stockade, the services of decorating them with the medals now occurred.

SENATOR PALMER: Mr. Officer of the Day and comrades, in behalf of the State of New York, represented here by this Commission and by the Senators and the Assemblymen, who stand here side by side, we are, as the representatives of the State of New York, now about to confer on you each a medal inscribed with your name, your company and regiment, which you may wear proudly upon your breast to your life's end, in testimony of the Empire State's appreciation of your sufferings upon this spot fifty years ago.

These ladies have been selected to pin these medals upon your breasts. One is the mother of one of the commissioners; four are the daughters of the commissioners and one the grand-daughter of a commissioner. In other words, every lady who will now perform this duty is related by blood to the commissioners, and but one from each family.

Each comrade, when his name is called, will march to the front and receive his medal.

The banquet under the trees which had grown up within the stockade was then partaken of.

PRESENTATION OF LOVING CUP

At the conclusion of the banquet, the comrades were assembled underneath the trees within the prison stockade and the chairman of the Commission being sent for was surprised indeed by the presentation to him of a loving cup filled with the water of Providence Spring.

The presentation address was made by Commissioner I. M. Foster as follows:

Senator Palmer, in behalf of all who have participated in this trip, I am commissioned to present to you this loving cup, the gift of your comrades in token of their love and esteem. Comrades, I have known Senator Palmer for many years. Indeed, I have been his friend and he has been mine all along life's journey, and it is a particularly grateful task to me that upon this spot I should be privileged to present to my friend this loving cup, which we procured unknown to him in Richmond, where he was long a prisoner, and which we now present to him as a token not only of our love, but of the obligations which we are under to him for his patient and successful labors as chairman of the Commission in gathering us from all parts of the State, and bringing us safely to this place and hour.

Senator Palmer has many qualities of manhood, never forgets his friends, is true to the principles of life, and loyal to every responsibility in life; he is in possession of the rarest jewels that man ever carries, the friendships of all these men. The friendship! These lives will fade and die, and that which I am going to give to you, sir, will rot by and by, but the friendship and loyalty of these hearts to you, sir, will abide forever. Yes, sir. I am speaking out of my own heart and out of the heart and conscience of every man that is here.

Very few of these men know, sir, how assiduously and with what undivided attention you have toiled early and late for weeks and weeks, without any other thoughts of remuneration except a successful trip; and God has crowned you with health and permitted us to come here with you under your general direction, with the assistance of the men now gathered about you; and, sir, it has cropped up in our hearts to express to you here and now on this sacred spot our appreciation of your toil and effort in bringing us here.

In this loving cup we express to you our confiding regard and in it now is just a little of the water from Old Providence Spring.

God swept over this place once with a tornado; as it seemed to us, the heavens had conspired with our foes to destroy us. The black clouds gathered from the four corners of the sky. They seemed to meet just over this prison to unite their force and power in destroying us. The muttering thunder was like the voice of threatening, the flashing lightning told us of its devastating power; then the gates opened and the rain descended in torrents and that little stream became a mighty rushing river and the water rushed down the two hills and it seemed to open everything so as to destroy us; but at last the storm swept by. Then we discovered that God's right hand had reached down into the soil and had opened a spring out of which was pouring water, pure and clear, sufficient to satisfy the wants of the prison, and by common consent we named it "Providence Spring," as if the hand of God in the fury of the storm had opened the earth to bring forth water for famished thousands.

In this loving cup which expresses our friendship is the water Almighty God brought us when we were famishing for water; it is an expression of our appreciation of your toil, which we hope may always remind you in years to go by of the friendship and regard of these men.

RESPONSE BY SENATOR PALMER

My comrades, I thank you. I never was more surprised, for not the least intimation had come to me that you intended to make me any gift whatever; above all, so splendid a loving cup, which I accept gratefully and will keep to the end of my life in memory of your appreciative friendship.

Of course, I have for many months, by night and day, done what I could to make this trip successful, to bring you from your far-scattered homes in comfort to this spot, so that all who were invited to the privileges of this trip, and no others, should be here assembled. Also, that every man should have a good breakfast and dinner and supper and a comfortable sleeping car berth, and avoiding all extravagance, yet that you should make this long journey in comfort as the guests of the Empire State. Also, we brought along a good nurse, a fair girl from Albany, whose father was a prisoner here, who has cared for you on the trains; and a physician as well, in case of any illness, who also was himself a prisoner here and who lives within the bounds of my senatorial district. I have had the co-operation of my colleagues in so far as their assistance has been necessary, and if I have served to make this extraordinary journey a successful celebration of your achievements on this spot, I am, in that alone, repaid.

I was never a prisoner myself here at Andersonville as you all were. I spent nine months in Confederate prisons, but not here. It was therefore you that suffered here and not I. It was that great statesman of New York, Roscoe Conkling, who once said that, "The fibre of a man is determined not so much by what he can perform as by what he can endure." Comrades, you who spent months and years of your youth in these prisons, surely developed the virtue of endurance as few men in history have done.

It has so happened that in the passage of the years I seem to have become the last Union soldier remaining in legislative office in the State of New York. Not many years ago there were twenty or thirty men who served in the Senate or Assembly who were Union soldiers. The Lieutenant-Governor was usually an old soldier who was honored with this office, because, in addition to his personal qualifications, he had an historic record.

With the defeat for re-election of Dr. Bush of Chemung last year, I have become the only man left in the Legislature whose youth was spent in the army. I have no doubt that it was largely therefor that I was given the privilege to serve you as the chairman of this Commission. Moreover, I wish to say in this presence, to the honor of my friend, Lieutenant-Governor Robert F. Wagner, that despite the fact that I am not of his politics, yet at his suggestion I was designated to membership in this Commission and by the votes of my associates was unanimously elected its-chairman. I have tried, therefore, to carry out my duties without any political preference whatever to one or another.

I have tried, also, to make every one comfortable, so that if all the people of the State, whose guests you really are and at whose expense you have made this journey, could know of every dollar of their money which has been expended for your comfort, all would gladly approve it, and if we have succeeded in bringing you here in comfort and shall get you home in safety, that will be my real reward.

I trust it will be in our power, also, on our return to reimburse you for your expenses from your respective homes to the city of New York and return.*

I thank you now for the loving cup with all my heart.

A COMRADE: Three cheers for our Senator.

A COMRADE: Three cheers for the Empire State of New York.

SECRETARY KILLGORE: I propose three cheers for William B. Carswell and the other men who aided us in getting the bill through the Legislature.

COMMISSIONER FOSTER: Three cheers for the secretary who worked so assiduously.

2:30 P. M.

(The comrades are re-assembled about the yet veiled monument.)

PRAYER BY COMMISSIONER FOSTER

Almighty God, the Father of us all, Giver of all the mercies of life: We give praise and thanksgiving to Thee for the privilege that is granted us this hour of gathering together on this sacred spot to dedicate to the memory of those who sacrificed their lives in the interest of truth the pillar of stone that as the days go by shall speak of their loyalty and of their service to truth.

Grant us Thy blessing and impress upon our hearts, deeper than ever before, the value of truth, and help us ever to associate ourselves with that which is true and pure and good, to the glory of Thy

* The Legislature of 1915 appropriated a sum sufficient to refund to each New York Andersonville survivor, living outside of the city of New York who attended the dedication of the monument, the amount of the railroad fare from his home to New York City and return.

This amount has been paid to each survivor living, or the proper representative of deceased, by the treasurer of the State of New York, and thus the Empire State has redeemed its promise, for the accomplishment of which our thanks are extended to both branches of the Legislature and particularly to Senators Carswell and Sage, Speaker Sweet, Assemblyman McDonald and to Hon. Charles S. Whitman, Governor.

great name, to the honor of our nation's life, to the advancement and exaltation of truth, as the days shall go.

Hear us for Thy name's sake. Amen.

ADDRESS BY SENATOR PALMER

I request the keeper of this cemetery, Mr. Bryant, whose services have been very great to us, and the keeper of the prison stockade, by whose courtesy we were permitted to have our dinner served within its bounds to-day, to accept seats upon the platform.

We have come now, my comrades, almost to the closing services of this long itinerary. The average one of you has probably come 1,500 miles from your home to this spot and there will be an equal distance in return, which I pray God you may all make in safety.

The hour has now arrived for the dedication of the monument itself. It will be turned over by the Commission to the representative of the State, and by him, in turn, to the representative of the President of the United States unveiled. [This completed monument to her dead the State of New York to-day gives over to the nation for its eternal care.

ADDRESS OF THE HON. THADDEUS C. SWEET

MR. CHAIRMAN, VETERANS, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

For me to attempt to add to the impressiveness of this occasion would not only be sacrilegious but a mockery. It seems that the most befitting service would be for us to bow our heads with these surviving veterans in solemn thought and turn our faces then heavenward with thankful hearts to our most gracious Lord for the preservation of these many veterans who have been spared to assemble here to-day in peaceful communion.

In all the ages of the past the true soldier who has battled for human life and his country and its institutions has won and received the homage of the American people, the loving gratitude of his countrymen.

We have gathered together here to-day to dedicate this monument to the brave men who gave up their lives that this country might live; but they have a more enduring monument than this, for, friends, when this shaft shall crumble and decay, when the very names it is intended to memorialize shall have been effaced from this monument, their names will still be sacred in the hearts of the American people.

As we look upon this monument to-day it awakens many sad memories, for within yon prison walls that once stood upon these adjacent grounds, one of my own flesh and blood wasted and went down to an untimely but a true soldier's grave.

You can remember when the agitation for State's rights and secession culminated in that mad act which trained the batteries of Charleston and sent their hissing globes of destruction upon the fortress of Sumpter. You remember the thrill that ran through the North when that flag of our country had been stricken from the air in which it had floated for almost a century; but those guns fired from the harbor of Charleston, like the guns fired from the bridge of Lexington, echoed around the world, and hardly had the echo died away, when, born for the place he filled, the greatest man ever President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln (applause), called on all those who loved their country to come to the defense of it. You remember how the volunteer soldier came from the office, the shop, the factory and the farm. You remember that mighty tide that poured from our hillsides and valleys and went down to the defense of an endangered country.

You remember the long and weary march, the lonesome and sickly camp, the wild carnage of battle and the prison horrors. You remember the return of the worn and weary troops when the war was done, clothed with honor and with fame. You remember, alas, that many came before, but it was in their leaden cases, folded underneath the flag they bore.

But out of all this sadness there is to-day joy in our hearts, and what joy there would have been in the hearts of our soldier dead if they could have lived to have known what you and I know to-day. If they could have known that at the first alarm of the war, at the first insult to our flag, that the sons of the South and the sons of the North would be marching shoulder to shoulder; that the sons who once wore the gray were proud to join the blue and march again under the same flag. If they could have seen their country take its proud position among the nations of the East, if they could have seen the flag they followed waving in the front for human right, feared by tyranny and respected by the world, they would have known the honor that comes with a duty well and nobly done; but no nation has ever become great until it has been dotted with the graves of those who died to defend it, and, Mr. Chairman, how beautifully pictured is that truth in these few lines:

Then give me the land where the ruins are spread
And the living hold dear the graves of their dead.
Yes, give me the land that has story and song
To tell of the strife of the right and the wrong.
Oh, give me the land that has legends and lays
To tell of the story of long vanished days.
Oh, give me the land of the wreck and the tomb;
There's a grandeur in graves; there's glory in gloom,
For out of the gloom future brightness is born
As after the night comes the sunlight of morn,
And each single grave, though with grass o'er grown,
May yet be a footstool for liberty's throne,
And each single wreck in the pathway of might
May yet be a rock in the temple of right.

Mr. Chairman, I thank you for this opportunity of assembling with this delegation and Commission representing the State of New York on this most memorable occasion. It was my privilege and pleasure to be a guest of the State of New York at its celebration at Gettysburg last summer, the most solemn, most sacred that I had ever attended; but to-day when I breathe in this air and feel that I have trodden over the graves in this hallowed ground upon which, as I have mentioned before, my own flesh and blood sacrificed his life to his country, I feel that no greater honor could ever come to a citizen of the State of New York, and I most sincerely thank you, Mr. Chairman. (Applause.)

ADDRESS OF SENATOR PALMER

I will now ask the lady who has been designated for the unveiling of the monument to take her place. Others will kindly gather around, but move to either side, so that the view may be unobstructed. We are now about to take two portraits of the monument as it is unveiled. The most artistic bas-relief I know of anywhere in this country is now about to be revealed. After the monument itself is unveiled, pictures will be taken of it, with all remaining seated.

I have also asked the ladies, who this morning fastened on the breasts of the veterans the medals of honor, to take their places in the order that their names were called, that a portrait may also be taken of them in front of the monument. Colonel Langfitt, representing the President of the United States, and Senator John F. Murtaugh, representing the Governor of New York, will kindly stand by me.

DEDICATORY PRAYER

An now, Almighty God, sacred unto Thee is the death of Thy saints; safe in the keeping of Thy Providence forever may be this bronze and granite — safe from storms and earthquakes and all the ravages of time — this monument which the State of New York this day, on this spot, dedicates to the memory of her dead.

(The monument was then unveiled by Mrs. Helen Palmer Andrus of New York; comrades remained standing while the band played the Star-Spangled Banner.)

A great sculptor once was chiseling nothing more beautiful than that, and he could not bear to think that he who wrought it should so soon be forgotten, so he carved his name up against the wall where no one could see it. A bystander asked, "Why do you carve your name there where no one can see it?" And he gave this answer which has lived always: "Ah, but the gods will see it."

I congratulate the artist that wrought this thing of beauty, to the honor of our comrades who here perished, and the glory of the State of New York; and now, Senator Murtaugh, my dear colleague, as the representative of the Governor of the State in his absence and at his request, in behalf of the Commission which was entrusted with the dedication of this memorial to our dead, I turn over to you this monument with the request that you, in turn, will transfer it to the representative of the President and the keeping of the nation, and thus our labors, I trust, are not unworthily accomplished.

ADDRESS OF THE HON. JOHN F. MURTAUGH

We are assembled to dedicate a monument that will perpetuate to future generations the sacrifices and patriotism of nine thousand New York soldiers, who, at the call of their country, left their homes to preserve the Union, marched to the front, stamped the story of their valor on many battle-fields, were made prisoners of war, and three thousand of whom died upon the ground where this monument now stands.

We come here, at the command of a Government of nine millions of people, to pay the honor New York State declares should be conferred on its martyred sons. Our State has never forgotten its brave defenders. It has given them preference over other citizens in the service of the Government; it has established and maintained homes for the old soldier in his declining years; it has erected on many fields beautiful monuments to commemorate the deeds of its soldiers; and to-day it places upon the graves of those heroes, who fell not on the field of strife, but amid the gloom of prison camp, this beautiful stone as an emblem, a lasting tribute, to the noble sacrifice and patriotic devotion that these brave men made for their State, their country and mankind.

This is another event along the course that marks the affection of the American people for the private soldier. All along the pathway striking landmarks are erected. Numerous fields are covered with emblems of remembrance. This is as it should be — for we are a nation of the people. In other ages and countries, imposing testimonials have been erected to able generals, great warriors, kings and emperors. Egypt has pyramids to her kings, England has Westminster Abbey to her great, the tombs of Napoleon and Charlemagne adorn France, but on every battle-field of America rise beautiful monuments to the memory of the private soldier, to the citizen who became a soldier, to the man who laid down his axe and took up his gun and on every field of battle left the story of his valor in letters of blood. (Applause.)

It is wise for the American people to honor the memories of the men who fought and died that the American institution might live. No nation can long survive that fails to honor its soldiers and defenders. The quality of the martial strength consists more in the spirit than in the number of men. When this republic forgets its soldiers, it will have none. One way to prepare the nation for the wars of the future is to honor the heroes of the past.

That is why we are here to-day. We come to pay tribute to the memory of the soldier who died in the prison camp; he is equally entitled to honor with him who died on the field of battle. It is a mournful sorrow that goes out to the soldier who passed away amid the horrors of a war prison. There was for him none of the glory that comes to one who meets his death on the field of service. He is far from the land of his birth; amid strangers, he suffers in sorrow and misery; sickness, hunger and despair, surrounding him, shut out the sunlight of hope. Death comes with none of the inspirations that buoy the warrior in battle, no martial music, no thought of a fort to be captured or a height to be stormed. He meets death alone, in prison, and in misery, with no dream of future glory.

What a contrast between this death and that of the soldier who dies amid the thunder of cannon and the clash of infantry. The boys who marched to the front at Antietam and Vicksburg, who fought Jackson at Chancellorsville, or repulsed Pickett on the heights of Gettysburg, were fighting in an atmosphere of glory with a chance of victory, but the prisoners at Andersonville stood in the face of death and defeat. They had to fight as they fought, and die as they died, in the cold shadow of foregone disaster. It was not their fault, poor, humble, brave soldiers, that they did not die on the field of glory. They did and dared and died just as bravely and just as gamely amid the human wreckage at Andersonville as they would have done amid the glories of Gettysburg. (Applause.) It is all the same at last. The nation will ever remember their bravery, cherish their loyalty and never let the glory of their patriotism grow dim. (Applause.)

There is a beautiful custom in Switzerland. At the crossing of their mountains, the Swiss are wont to bury those whom the people delight to honor and then to mark the spot with a small pile of stones. Thereafter, each passer-by whose heart beats in sympathy and unison with the spirit that lies beneath the ground picks up a stone and casts it on the pile; and so in the lapse of years there springs up an impressive, enduring and ever-growing memorial in honor of the departed. On this day we engrave on our tablets of remembrance the image of this monument which will ever recall the memory of those who died here. We place this memorial here to add to the impressiveness of the scene where so many heroes sleep. We pilgrims who have gathered here to-day place this monument on the memorial pile of the dead. May it stand through the years, grow more stately with the lapse of time and remain an everlasting remembrance to the memory of brave and good men.

Far from here, the beautiful city of Elmira nestles among the hills of southern New York. It is the city of my birth. When the great Civil War racked the nation many a southern soldier was captured and spent his last days in the war prison at Elmira. This place, these graves and this occasion carries my mind back to my native city. There, in the quiet part of Elmira, in the shadow of the western hills, where the sun casts its last lingering glance as it sets for the day, is Woodlawn cemetery, a well kept resting-place of the dead. There lie sleeping thousands of southern soldiers, captured in battle, who passed from earth while prisoners of war, whose graves are covered in spring by the green sod and in winter by a beautiful mantle of snow.

Between Elmira and the people of the South there exists a pathetic bond. Within the portals of our city we still watch with tender care the graves of the southern dead. Nearby is many a northern soldier who died on his way to the front. Year after year, the people of my city have decked alike the graves of the soldier dead. They have guarded and cared for them; over the rounded mounds stand white markers, and in books of record are the names of the brave men. It matters not whether they wore the blue or the gray. The war is over and with it ceased all anger and hate.

The southern soldiers sleeping in Woodlawn cemetery at Elmira are not aliens, but Americans who fought for what they thought was right. They are the dead of a united nation. The soldier boys in blue, resting in the same graveyard with the boys in gray, were parted in life; they are united in death. They are resting under the same sod. The sun, as it rises in the morning, looks alike upon their graves; when it sets over the western hill, it gives them both a peaceful benediction. Above them, and over their union in the grave, floats the flag of a united country. (Applause.)

New York, to-day, with military pomp and civic splendor, offers this tribute to her dead sons at Andersonville. Rachel-like, she weeps for her lost ones, bends in sadness over their graves and bows in reverence to the memory of the brave heroes whose lives were sacrificed for the State and Union. After fifty years this may be a tardy recognition, but it cannot be said that the State has been ungrateful. The Empire State will never forget how these soldier boys fought and died in the dark days of the country's need. As long as an American lives and salutes the stars and stripes, as long as the heart of an American beats for his country, so long will a grateful people remember the heroic devotion and awful sacrifice these sleeping heroes made for the preservation of our glorious republic. (Applause.)

Mr. Chairman, it now becomes our duty as members of the Commission appointed by the State of New York to present to the representative of the Government of the United States this memorial of the departed dead — this memorial to the prisoners of war, of whose loyalty and patriotism the people of the State of New York will ever be proud.

On behalf of the State of New York, and pursuant to the power in this Commission vested, we now present and deliver this monument to the representative of the Government of the United States. (Applause.)

ADDRESS BY COLONEL LANGFITT

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN REPRESENTING THE STATE OF NEW YORK, COMRADES — IF I MAY CALL YOU SO — AND LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

It is peculiarly difficult for me to fittingly represent the President of the United States, the Commander-in-Chief of the forces which have succeeded those whom we are to-day gathered together to honor. His well chosen words, perhaps few in number, yet so apt, would render any effort of mine poor indeed by comparison. I shall attempt no formal address, and what I have to say will be only a few of the sentiments naturally arising in the heart of a soldier before the tomb of those whose great privilege it was to defend and serve their flag, even unto the bitter end.

We are here, you are here, ladies and gentlemen of New York and fellow survivors of the Andersonville prison, to complete the last sad rite in memory of those gallant soldiers from the great Empire State, who, through fortunes of war, were not privileged to fall upon the field of battle but who met their end in a no less honorable way, succumbing to the rigors, so to speak, of a necessarily rigid confinement, a confinement where both guarding and guarded often lacked the necessities of life; where force of circumstances, the undeveloped state of prison management, the lack of hospital supplies and medicines, and even of surgeons and physicians, rendered high the mortality. It is recorded that of the total number of prisoners, 45,000 or 50,000, confined here, in a locality selected because the country was well wooded, with ample water, many farms, and blessed by nature with a salubrious and delightful climate, some 12,912 died of various diseases; and of these, your State, Mr. Chairman, was represented by the largest number of all, some 2,572 being interred in this beautiful national cemetery, the next largest representation being Pennsylvania with only 1,811. It is stated, also, that there are 119 Confederate prisoners of war also interred in this cemetery.

A few years ago it was my privilege to erect, at the charge of the national Government, a monument to the Confederate prisoners who died in the Federal camp of confinement at Point Lookout, Md. Other similar monuments have been erected elsewhere, and I have now in charge the erection of a stone "Reared by The Congress of the United States as a Nation's Tribute to Brigadier-Generals James Screven and Daniel Stewart," both of Revolutionary fame.

When I think of these things and the many monuments that have been erected, both East and West, and North and South; when I look upon this beautiful memorial whose dedication we are to-day consummating, as a soldier I feel a deep thanksgiving that the people of this great country appreciate and honor the soldier's calling, and when he has made the last great sacrifice his name and deeds are forever recorded in their hearts and commemorated in unchanging marble and bronze.

No one regrets more than I, though appreciating most deeply the great compliment of having been selected as his representative, that His Excellency the President of these United States was prevented by harrassing cares of state from being present in person to accept on behalf of the general government from the State of New York this monument to her sons. He would no doubt have assured you that so long as he retained his high office he would extend every effort to see that it received that loving care which its intention and object so well warrants. He would thank you in the name of the nation for so fittingly recording in such enduring and beautiful material the sacrifices made by the sons of your State that these United States should forever be united in one indissoluble bond; and on his behalf I hereby accept this monument from the State of New York.

ADDRESS BY SENATOR PALMER

Now, my comrades, farewell. I trust we shall journey safely to our homes together. Farewell to the dear lads who have slept here so long and will lie here in silence forever. We will not come this way again. When we meet them it will be yonder in the great roll call that awaits us, to which, please God, we all shall answer.

DEDICATION OF MONUMENT AT ANDERSONVILLE

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, TENN.

APRIL 30, 1914, 2 P. M.

(Miss Mackenzie of Watervliet, N. Y., sang "America.")

ON MOTION of Commissioner Kerrigan, a vote of thanks was unanimously passed to Senator Carswell and Assemblyman Hamilton of Brooklyn, who introduced into the Legislature the bill which authorized the appointment of the Andersonville Monument Dedication Commission.

On motion of Commissioner Patrie, a unanimous vote of thanks also was tendered to Miss Julia A. Littlefield of Albany, N. Y., a daughter of an Andersonville prisoner and the superintendent of the Homeopathic Hospital of Albany, N. Y., who had accompanied us for three thousand miles, with no recompense whatever except the privilege to lend a hand to some unfortunate survivor who should become ill upon this journey; and to Dr. Edwin L. Ford of Lexington, Greene county, N. Y., also an Andersonville survivor, who gave his services freely to any one who was in need of medical attendance on the trip.

The secretary of the Commission, Mr. Joseph L. Killgore, then made the following impromptu address:

ADDRESS OF MR. KILLGORE

COMRADES, FRIENDS:

You will notice in addressing you that I use the word comrades first, not with any thought of disrespect to any of our well wishers in this audience. You cannot appreciate the tie which exists between the comrades of the Union army and navy or fully realize the bond of fraternity shared by the survivors of Confederate prisons, particularly Andersonville. My heart has always been with these survivors and the Union men of the southland. I am more than grateful to the chairman for giving me the opportunity to explain the matter at this very appropriate place. I am gratified at the success of this memorable trip. I have only the most sincere thanks for those who made it possible for us to be here.

I mentioned yesterday the men who gave up their lives in the prison pens that our Union might remain one and inseparable, and believe that those who suffered in the prison pens of the Confederacy were doing as much for the success of the Union cause as the defenders who were facing the guns of its enemies. History shows that they were. Yet their heroic fortitude and that of the southern Unionists has never been appreciated or recognized by the nation. I think I am justified in saying that without their great service and unyielding loyalty the triumph of the Union arms would have been much longer delayed, if not indefinitely postponed. It is fitting that I should utter these words on this historic spot, because, looking out from this eminence, we can almost see the homes of thousands of southern men whose devotion to the Union was as rugged and true as these eternal hills about us.

In studying the "Battle above the Clouds" fought here, it is a significant fact that the stars and stripes in that combat were first planted on Lookout Mountain, where we are now gathered, by the Union soldiers from Kentucky. Southern Union men, if you please. Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, and other States of the South, under the circumstances in which they were placed, did their full share in saving the Union. There were many loyal supporters of our cause in each of these States.

I have been trying for months to interest the American people in an effort to recognize the spirit of loyalty which controlled the Unionists of the South and the Union prisoners of war. If this nation is to live and be the great disseminator of the principles of liberty and equality, it seems silly to suppose that it can be done by ignoring the faithful, and consigning to oblivion the story of their devotion. Loyalty should be recognized as the crown of an American citizen and the people taught to regard it as such.

I had hoped upon this citadel of patriotism to hastily outline the proposition to you, but the sun will not obey me as it did Joshua of old and "stand still." Chairman Palmer is anxious to have our photographer secure a good picture of this audience before the sun recedes; he has requested me to temporarily discontinue my remarks.

Under the circumstances, I am sure you will agree with me that the time is too limited for me to make a satisfactory explanation so I will defer the matter for the present, but will detain you long enough to ask for a vote as to your sympathy and support of the movement as far as you understand it.

(A vote was then taken, which was a unanimous one in the affirmative and in assurance of support.)

I thank you most cordially for this vote. I will remember the time, the place, and the people who made it. (Applause.)

FINAL ADDRESS OF SENATOR PALMER

And now, my comrades, we have gathered about this noble monument of our State on the summit of Lookout Mountain for a last word together, ere we find our way to the trains and journey homeward. You may consider this, therefore, a sort of closing ceremony.

Here, where the "Battle above the Clouds" was fought — a deed so glorious that all the world has sung its praises — we have now gathered, having journeyed in safety thus far on our way, pausing at Richmond and Danville, Va., at Salisbury, N. C., and Andersonville, Ga., paying our tribute of honor to these victims of the war that saved the Union who lie asleep in these bleak cemeteries.

Above every one of their faces we have planted a flag of the State, have sung our songs and spoken our words in their honor, and at Andersonville itself have dedicated the monument which the State has there erected for their eternal remembrance.

If the weather had been made to order it could not have been more glorious for our trip, and so Providence has smiled upon us with the sunshine of His favor on every step of our progress.

This journey has been, as it was intended to be, a solemn pilgrimage; a pilgrimage to the shrines of patriotism.

It is, perhaps, the last journey of this character that any of us will ever make, for we will not pass this way again. There have been flowers; there have been banners; there has been music. These are outward signs of our tribute to the dead, but the real tribute has been that of our hearts, we who here have prided ourselves in grateful memory that in our own youth we were comrades with these dead, in their privations, and have been spared in the infinite merey of our Heavenly Father to re-visit their sepulchres after half a century of time has passed.

I trust that you all may arrive safely at your homes and that until the end of life's journey you may cherish the sweet memory that the State of New York honored you with this privilege and with the satisfaction that you have done your duty faithfully.

Those of you who are members of the Commission, but not the survivors of the prisons, have wondered every day why such cruel sufferings were not averted by the exchange of prisoners between the Union and the Confederacy; in other words, why these faithful men had been permitted thus to perish. In a word, the explanation is this: There did exist a cartel of exchange of prisoners which was in force generally until the summer of '63, that is to say, until Gettysburg and Vicksburg, because the number of prisoners previous to that summer was approximately the same on both sides.

That cartel called for an exchange of either man for man, or all for all, and where the number was the same it was immaterial which prevailed, but after Gettysburg and Vicksburg the number greatly increased in favor of the North. Then the Confederates at first refused to exchange man for man, as that would have left many of their soldiers in northern prisons for which they held no complementary numbers.

Afterward, when they did favor exchange of prisoners in any manner, it was the North that refused to further carry out the cartel.

Grant had paroled some 26,000 prisoners at Vicksburg and insisted upon their being counted in the exchange. Also the question of colored soldiers captured by the Confederates was a serious complication. However, the prevailing reason was doubtless this, that it had been discovered after two years and more of desperate conflict that there were Anglo-Saxons on both sides of the lines and the Union could never be preserved except by the exhaustion of the rebellious States. The Federal army could be recruited far easier than the Confederate, and Confederate soldiers in northern prisons were better fed, clothed and housed, and if they had been exchanged would have reinforced the Confederate armies by whole army corps or more of hale and hearty veterans, while the Union armies would have received in return the men from Belle Island, Salisbury and Andersonville, so emaciated by their privations as to be for a long period of little use in the ranks of the army.

Then it was that two men rose up in our country who "Shut the Gates of Mercy of Mankind," broke the cartel of exchange and left the Union soldiers in the Confederate prisons to pine and perish there. Their names were Edward M. Stanton and Ulysses S. Grant, and I say that they did right; but it made every man that perished for the Union in prison a hero glorious, since his confinement there had put hors de combat one or more Confederate soldiers in northern prisons whose return to their army would have prolonged the war, if it had not imperiled the result; so that on a day when there were 20,000 men in Andersonville, 10,000 in Salisbury, 5,000 in Danville and 5,000 in Richmond, 40,000 Union prisoners "in durance vile," the day Grant entered the Wilderness and Sherman started from Atlanta to the sea, the exchange of prisoners ceased, and these 40,000 soldiers of the Union were left in their prisons — destined to suffer in silence and sublimity where no man but only God saw them; where no banners waved nor cannon roared, but where the cruel "dead line" confronted them; where the bleak winds smote or blazing sun scorched them; without food, without shelter, without hope — and thus perished the noblest spirits of those who saved the Union and preserved the American republic forever.

There is one further matter of which I wish to speak before I bid you farewell. You will note that day by day I have called your attention to the remarkable fact that in these prison cemeteries practically all the dead were the "enlisted" men of the armies. There were no commissioned officers at all confined in Andersonville. The monument, therefore, that celebrates their glory is to the enlisted soldier alone. Also, there were few, if any, commissioned officers that died in the prisons or are interred either at Danville, Salisbury, Florence or Richmond. The reason, of course, as has been explained, is that the commissioned officers received better treatment and were less in number. For example: one whole regiment, the 85th N. Y., was confined in Andersonville, except the commissioned officers, who were sent to Macon, Ga.

I trust that it is not necessary to say to you that this glorifying of the enlisted men who perished in prison is not with any purpose to disparage or disqualify the honor of the commissioned officers in the army. It is simply a statement of fact, a glorious fact indeed for the enlisted man without reflection upon the officers who commanded him.

Of course, we honor our great commanders. Did we not pause at Richmond to pay a tribute to the greatest of them all — General Grant? And for all who led us well we have a grateful appreciation and render them every honor that is their due. Nevertheless, it is to the glory of the enlisted man that in the prison records it was he who endured all things; he who suffered in silence; of hunger and nakedness; of cold and heat, with the cruel "dead line" and the cruel keeper. Thus it is to him the State has erected the monument and to him belongs the glory.

A soldier when he volunteers in the service of his country knows that he may fall in battle. Often in his mind he has forecast what possibly would be his fate. He did not, however, often anticipate the sufferings of the hospitals or the privations of the prisons. He foresaw himself in the hour of battle, rushing forward with his comrades by his side, the bugles blaring, the flag floating over his head, all cheering, and falling, with a thud, dead on his face on the field of battle. That was how he pictured his possible fate, but many of our comrades lived to learn that that indeed were a merciful death in comparison to that from hunger and thirst and cold, without a friend to cheer you, without a word from home, without a thought beyond to-morrow's ration, and without a hope as days and months went wearily by, and he saw and felt the end of his strength approaching. That was the hour of his real sublimity and no man in all history has been the spiritual superior of this humble private soldier who went down piteously to his death in the cruel prisons which we have re-visited, and lies now for fifty years asleep in the cemeteries where we have reverently stood.

Thus there remains a certain quality of unselfishness that must ever distinguish the glory of the private soldier from that of the officer who commanded him. The recruit who volunteered to serve his country, provided he could be an officer or bargained that he should have a captaincy or command a regiment, surely was not so unselfish a soul as he who wrote his name on the rolls of the army without regard to his rank or remuneration — a private soldier. Here, for example, is an illustration:

Off Cape St. Vincent, Lord Nelson was strolling his quarter-deck, anticipating the glorious hour of victory that that day awaited him. Somebody is said to have heard him muttering to himself, "This day will mean for me a peerage or Westminster Abbey." He did a glorious deed for the Anglo-Saxon race that day, and yet he was thinking of what it would mean for himself.

Contrast that with Korneloff and the men who stood with him about the gun in the third bastion at Sebastopol as the last charge was forming. Listen, and you will hear him shout: "Here they come, men, here they come. We will die but we will not surrender the bastion," and up from the throats of these private soldiers, recruited from the Russian peasantry, we still hear their dying cry: "We will die huzza, we will die huzza." On came the charge. They captured the bastion, but when the smoke of battle lifted, Korneloff and all his men were dead about their gun. I do not contrast their courage with that of the famous English Admiral, who, on the morning of his greatest victory, could think of his peerage or his monument. Neither would I compare it to that of the plain privates in the bastion of Sebastopol, who could shout for joy that then and there they were about to die for their country — and leave their names unknown. This is the glory everywhere of the private soldier.

There was once a man who had a poet's soul who immortalized this hero as the "Common Man." He was not thinking of generals or marshals, or of the men to whom wars brought emoluments or fame, but of the grandeur of the man who sprang from the common people and yet became sublime, when he dipped his pencil one morning in God's sunshine and wrote these lines:

These men were common men, 'tis true,
Just common men like me and you;
The plain man is the basic sod
From which you grow the demi-god.

Plain common men of every day,
Who left their homes to march away,
And perish on a battle's plain,
As common men will do again.

DEDICATION PARTY AT THE FOOT OF NEW YORK MONUMENT, LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN, TENN.

To lift a glaring, glazing eye,
Up to a lurid stranger sky,
And then to die and testify
To all the ages, far and nigh,
How great a thing it is to die.

It is not only now and then
You find such hearts in common men,
For standing face to face with fate,
The common man is always great.

For men are cowards in the gloom
Of their own little selfish fears,
Not when the thunder steps of doom
Stride down the trembling years,
And in the mighty fight with fate,
The common man is always great.

When we were boys, my comrades, when we girded our loins with strength and these gray hairs that have now come upon our foreheads were but a future thought, there was a day in our country when there was a sound in the air that every youth distinctly heard. It was the roll of a drum on the heights of Arlington; it was the boom of a cannon in the harbor of Charleston; it was the voice of our country calling her sons to come and die for her. Every farmer's son dropped his plough and listened; every student in a dormitory closed his book when he heard it; every operator in a factory; every single youth in all the land heard that sound alike. Then occurred the great demarcation between man and man, which in all ages and all nations has separated those who served themselves from those who could live and die for others. So a white line of men is distinguishable in all history, the men who live not for themselves alone.

Some of the youth who heard that call thought of themselves, saying, "There will be war; we will get into some good business; there will be wealth for those who know how to seek it; there will be opportunity for men who will stay at home and seize it," and even so they found it. These youths had their reward. They became rich; the spoils of war piled into their laps; they were contractors; they were commissaries; they were investors in every line of business that resulted from the war. To-day these are the men who dwell in mansions, who ride in equipages, who pass in haughty self-complacency along the ways of life. Verily, I say unto you, they had their reward.

The youth who heard the call of their country and did not think only of themselves did none of these deeds. What they thought was, "Our country needs us now." What they did was to kiss their mothers and sweethearts good-bye, to write their names upon the roll of a regiment and to march away with cheers following them down the country road or the city street. Many of them never came back. They fell in battle; they perished in hospitals and prisons; but verily I say unto you, they also had their reward. They did not get rich — you cannot get rich on $13.00 a month — but their reward was this: whether they perished in battle or hospital or prison, or whether they survived war's perils and live to this hour, the glorious memory that when their country called them they volunteered, and the sweet consciousness that is a "crown upon their heads that no man taketh from them," that though they were plain farmers' sons, yet on their bleeding hands they upbore this mighty nation to freedom and to lasting renown — these are they above whose sepulchres we have reverently stood throughout this journey and you, also, my comrades, are of them whom God has spared, despite like perils, to see this day and to share in this dedication. And now, farewell, a loving, a long, a last farewell.

In behalf of the State of New York and the Commission who have served you, I trust, to your satisfaction, and who have been anxious for your safety and comfort, I bid you all an affectionate farewell. You will resume your places in the trains that await you at Chattanooga. We will start homeward as soon as all are safely aboard and by God's favor this "pilgrimage to the shrines of patriotism" is accomplished.

CLARA BARTON AT TIME OF CIVIL WAR

REPORT BY CLARA BARTON

Report of an expedition to Andersonville, Ga., July, 1865, for the purpose of identifying the graves and enclosing the grounds of a cemetery created there during the occupancy of that place as a prison for Union soldiers in Rebel hands.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

HAVING by an official invitation been placed upon an expedition to Andersonville for the purpose of identifying and marking the graves of the dead contained in those noted prison grounds, it is perhaps not improper that I make some report of the circumstances which induced the sending of such an expedition, its work, and the appearance, conditions and surroundings of that interesting spot, hallowed alike by the suffering of the martyred dead and the tears and prayers of those who mourn them.

During a search for the missing men of the United States army, begun in March, 1865, under the sanction of our late lamented President Lincoln, I formed the acquaintance of Dorence Atwater of Connecticut, a member of the 2d New York Cavalry, who had been a prisoner at Andersonville and Belle Isle twenty-two months, and who had been charged by the Rebel authorities with the duty of keeping the death register of the Union prisoners who died amid nameless cruelties of the first-named prison.

By minute inquiry I learned from Mr. Atwater the method adopted in the burial of the dead, and by carefully comparing his account with a draft which he had made of the grounds appropriated for this purpose by the prison authorities, I became convinced of the possibility of identifying the graves simply by comparing the numbered post or board marking each man's position in the trench in which he was buried with the corresponding number standing against his name upon the register kept by Mr. Atwater, which he informed me was then in possession of the War Department.

Assured by the intelligence and frankness of my informant of the entire truthfulness of his statements, I decided to impart to the officers of the Government the information I had gained, and accordingly brought the subject to the attention of General Hoffman, commissary-general of prisoners, asking that a party or expedition be at once sent to Andersonville for the purpose of identifying and marking the graves, and enclosing the grounds, and that Dorence Atwater with his register accompany the same as the proper person to designate and identify. The subject appeared to have been not only unheard of, but unthought of, and from the generally prevailing impression that no care had been taken in the burial of our prisoners the idea seemed at first difficult to be entertained. But the same facts which had served to convince me presented themselves favorably to the good understanding and kind heart of General Hoffman, who took immediate steps to lay the matter before the Hon. Secretary of War, upon whom, at his request, I called the following day and learned from him that he had heard and approved my proposition and decided to order an expedition consisting of materials and men, under charge of some Government officer, for the accomplishment of the object set forth in my request, and invited me to accompany the expedition in person, which invitation I accepted.

Accordingly, on the 8th of July, the propeller Virginia, having on board fencing material, headboards, the prison records, forty workmen, clerks, and letterers, under command of Capt. James M. Moore, A. Q. M., Dorence Atwater and myself, left Washington for Andersonville via Savannah, Ga., arriving at the latter place July 12th. Having waited at Savannah seven days and then resumed the journey by way of Augusta, Atlanta and Macon, the entire party reached its destination in safety about noon on the 25th of July.

We found the prison grounds, stockade, hospital sheds and the minor structures almost in the same condition in which they had been evacuated; and care is taken to leave these historic monuments undisturbed as long as the elements will spare them.

There is not, and never was, any town or village at this place except what grew out of its military occupation. Anderson station, on the railroad from Macon to Eufala, was selected as a depot for prisoners probably on account of its remoteness and possible security, and the prison itself, with the buildings which sprang up around it, constituted all there was of Andersonville.

The land around is broken and undulating, and at the time of the occupation was covered with forests, mostly of the long-leaved pine common to the uplands of the South. The bases of the hills are lined with cozy springs, which unite to form little rivulets, one of which winds sluggishly through each of the intervening marshy valleys.

The original inclosure of nineteen acres was made in the unbroken woods, and the timber was only removed as it was wanted for the necessity of the prison. The inclosure was made in January, 1864, and enlarged during the summer to $25\frac{3}{4}$ acres, being a quadrangle of 1,295 by 865 feet. The greatest length is from north to south, the ground rising from the middle toward each end in rather a steep, rounded hill, the northern one being at once the highest and of the greatest extent. A small stream, rising from springs a little to the westward, flows across it through a narrow valley filled with a compost washed down by the rains. The enclosing stockade is formed of pine logs, twenty feet in length and about eight inches in diameter, sunk five feet in the ground, and placed close together. This is again surrounded by two successive and precisely similar palisades, a portion of the last of which is gone. It seems never to have been completed. Two inner walls remain entire. Within the interior space, at a distance of about seventeen feet from the stockade, runs the famous "dead line" marked by small posts set in the ground and a slight strip of pine boards set on the top of them. The gates, of which there are two, situated on the west side, were continuations of the stockade, inclosing spaces of thirty feet square, more or less, with massive doors at either end. They were arranged and worked on the principle of canal locks. Upon the inner stockade were fifty-two sentry boxes, raised above the tops of the palisades and accessible to the guards by ladders. In these stood fifty-two guards with loaded arms, so near that they could converse with each other.

In addition to these, seven forts mounted with field artillery commanded the fatal space and its masses of perishing men.

Under the most favorable circumstances and best possible management, the supply of water would have been insufficient for half the number of persons who had to use it. The existing arrangements must have aggravated the evil to the utmost extent. The sole establishments for cooking and baking were placed on the bank of the stream immediately above and between the two inner lines of stockade. The grease and refuse from them were found adhering to the banks at the time of our visit. The guards, to the number of about 3,600, were principally encamped on the upper part of the stream, and when the heavy rains washed down the hillsides covered with 30,000 human beings, and the outlet below failed to discharge the flood which backed and filled the valley, the water must have become so foul and loathsome that every statement I have seen of its offensiveness must be considered as falling short of the reality. And yet within rifle shot of the prison flowed a stream fifteen feet wide and three deep of pure, delicious water. Had the prison been so placed as to include a section of the "Sweet Water Creek" the inmates might have drank and bathed to their hearts content.

During the occupation a beautiful spring broke out, like the waters of Meribah, from the solid ground near the foot of the north slope, just under the western dead line. It is still there, cool and clear, the only pleasing object in this horrid place.

The scarcity of water, the want of occupation, and perhaps the desire to escape by tunnelling, impelled the prisoners to dig wells. Forty of these, finished and unfinished, remain, those on the highest ground being sunk in the hard soil to the depth of eighty feet. The work was done with knives, spoons, sticks, and other tools but little better. The diggers brought up the earth in their pockets and blouses and sprinkled it about the ground to conceal the quantity. In some wells, excellent water was reached, and in others horizontal galleries were attempted for escape. In at least one instance a tunnel was carried through the hill and a few prisoners are said to have got through.

The steep face of the northern hill is burrowed throughout its whole extent. The little caves are scooped out and arched in the form of ovens, floored, ceiled and strengthened, so far as the owners had means, with sticks and pieces of boards, and some of them are provided with fireplaces and chimneys. It would seem that there were cases during long rains where the house would become the grave of its owner by falling in upon him during the night. In these burrows are still found remnants of wretched food and rude utensils of the occupants — drinking cups made of sections of horns, platters and spoons wrought from parts of old canteens, kettles and pans made without solder from stray pieces of old tin or sheet iron. I brought away a considerable number of these articles, which may some day be of interest to the curious.

Five sheds stand on the top of the northern hill, erected in the early part of the occupation, and five more on the opposite height, built a short time before the evacuation.

Like nearly all southern land, the land is liable to be washed away by the rains, and on the slopes of the hills ravines are now formed, gullied to the depth of twelve feet. It seems impossible that men could have kept their footing on these hillsides when slippery with rain.

Outside the inclosure and nearly parallel with its south end is the hospital stockade, 800 feet by 350. It contains twenty-two sheds, for the most part without sides, erected about three months before the place was abandoned. The old hospital, occupied up to that time, in which so many brave men died, consisted only of tents inclosed by a board fence and surrounded by a guard. Confused heaps of rubbish alone mark the place it occupied.

About half a mile from the main prison, and near Anderson station, is the officers' stockade, a small inclosure in which were never imprisoned more than 250 officers, and it was chiefly used for the confinement of Rebel offenders.

The cemetery, around which the chief interest must gather, is distant about 300 yards from the stockade in a northwesterly direction. The graves, placed side by side in close continuous rows, cover nine acres, divided into three unequal lots by two roads which intersect each other nearly at right angles. The fourth space is still unoccupied, except by a few graves of "Confederate soldiers."

No human bodies were found exposed and none were removed. The place was found in much better condition than had been anticipated, owing to the excellent measures taken by Major-General Wilson, commanding at Macon, and a humane, public-spirited citizen of Fort Valley, Ga., a Mr. Griffen, who, in passing on the railroad, was informed by one of the ever-faithful negroes that the bodies were becoming exposed and were rooted up by animals. Having verified this statement, he collected a few negroes, sunk the exposed bodies and covered them to a proper depth. He then reported the facts to General Wilson, and requested authority to take steps for protecting the grounds. That patriotic officer visited Andersonville in person, appointed Mr. Griffen temporary superintendent and gave him such limited facilities as could be furnished in that destitute country. It was determined to inclose a square of fifty acres; and at the time of our arrival the fence was nearly one-third built from old lumber found about the place. He had also erected a brick kiln and was manufacturing brick for drains to conduct the water away from the graves and protect and strengthen the soil against the action of heavy rains. We found Mr. Griffen with a force of about twenty negroes and a few mules at work upon the ground. I have understood that that gentleman furnished the labor at his own cost, while General Wilson issued the necessary rations.

The part performed by our party was to take up and carry forward the work so well begun. An additional force was obtained from the military commandant at Macon for completing the enclosure and erecting the headboards. It seems that the dead had been buried by Union prisoners, paroled from the hospital and stockade for that purpose. Successive trenches, capable of containing from 100 to 150 bodies each, thickly set with little posts or boards, with numbers in regular order carved upon them, told to the astonished and tear-dimmed eye the sad story of buried treasures. It was only necessary to compare the number on each post or board with that which stands opposite the name on the register and replace the whole with a more substantial, uniform and comely tablet, bearing not only the original number, but the name, company and regiment and date of death of the soldier who slept beneath.

I have been repeatedly assured by prisoners that great care was taken at the time by the men to whom fell the sad task of originally marking this astonishing number of graves to perform the work with faithfulness and accuracy. If it shall prove that the work performed by those who followed, under circumstances so much more favorable, was executed with less faithfulness and accuracy than the former, it will be a subject of much regret — but fortunately not yet beyond the possibility of correction. The number of graves marked is 12,920. The original records, captured by General Wilson, furnished about 10,500; but as one book of the record had not been secured, over 2,000 names were supplied from a copy (of his own record) made by Mr.

Atwater in the Andersonville prison and brought by him to Annapolis on his return with the paroled prisoners.

Interspersed throughout this Death Register were 400 numbers against which stood the dark word, "UNKNOWN." So, scattered among the thickly designated graves, stand 400 tablets, bearing only the number and the touching inscription, "UNKNOWN UNION SOLDIER."

Substantially, nothing was attempted beyond inclosing the grounds, identifying the graves and marking them, placing appropriate mottoes at the gates and along the spaces designed for walks and erecting a flag-staff in the center of the cemetery. The work was completed on the 17th of August, and the party took the route homeward by the way of Chattanooga, Nashville and Cincinnati, arriving at Washington on the morning of August 24th.

The health of the party during the expedition was remarkably good, when the season of the year, the fatigue and the want of customary accommodations are taken into consideration. Cases of slight chills and fever were not infrequent; but during the entire time we had only one case of severe illness, and that, to our grief, terminated fatally. Edward Watts of Georgetown, D. C., a clerk in the Quartermaster's Department, in this city, sickened of typhoid fever during the passage up the Savannah river, and died on the 10th day of August. His remains were taken home to his friends. Mr. Watts was a young man of education and refinement and of the highest type of moral and religious character; he suffered patiently, and died nobly and well. I have thought that he might be regarded as the last martyr of Andersonville.

The future of this historic spot cannot fail to constitute a subject of deep and abiding interest to the people of this entire country, and it would seem fitting that it should be preserved as one of the sanctuaries of the nation, and in due time decorated with appropriate honors. Its susceptibility of internal improvement is very great Water can be had for irrigation, and the climate will produce nearly all the flora of the temperate zone. Both national gratitude and personal affection will suggest the erection of a suitable monument within the cemetery, where, if desirable, may be preserved in durable form the names of the martyrs who sleep around. And as the land on which these interesting associations are clustered is still the property of private individuals, never having passed from the hands of the original owners, it would seem desirable that the cemetery at least, and its immediate surroundings, become the property of the nation. A mile square will embrace all points of general and historic interest.

There are numerous smaller burial-places in the State of Georgia, which, from their seeming lesser importance, will scarcely be kept up as national cemeteries, and in reference to which, without venturing to suggest, I would merely remark that the fifty acres inclosed at Andersonville would afford ample space for all whom it might ever be deemed advisable to remove to that point.

During the occupation of Andersonville as a prison it was a punishable offense for a colored man or woman to feed, shelter, aid, or even converse with the prisoners on parole. To others they had no access. I have been informed that they were not allowed about the prison grounds; and so great was their superstitious horror of the cruelties perpetrated upon the prisoners that only a comparatively small number had ever found the courage to visit the cemetery up to the time of our arrival. But the presence of so many northern people on such an errand, and especially a lady, entirely overcame their fears, and they visited the cemetery and myself by scores, men, women and children, sometimes a hundred in a day. It was no uncommon occurrence, upon opening up my tent in the morning, to find a group standing in front of it who had walked fifteen or twenty miles to see the "Yankee Lady," and ask her "if it were true that Abraham Lincoln was dead, and they were free," and "how Massa Lincoln's great paper read," and "what they ought to do," and tell her how the "poor Yankee prisoners" ran before the dogs "like us" and they could not have saved them — starved, and they could not feed them — died, and they could not see them.

Remember, mothers, that the pitying tear of the old-time slave, whom your son helped to freedom, is the only tear that falls upon his distant grave to-day.

I have endeavored to point out to you, as faithfully as I am able, the various objects of interest, painful or otherwise, which presented themselves to my observation during the time occupied in the work of the expedition; and while I would not dwell upon the terribleness of the sufferings imposed upon our prisoners, nor stir the hearts already sunk in grief to deeper woe, still we owe it alike to the living and the dead that a proper knowledge and a realization of the miseries which they endured be entertained by all. We are wont to attribute their chief suffering to the insufficiency of food, and while this is probably just, still, to the mind of one who has looked over the scanty, shelterless, pitiful spot of earth to which they were confined, and taken into consideration the numberless trials which must have grown out of the privation of space and necessary conveniences of life, the conviction will force itself that these latter woes fell but little short of the former. It is to be remembered that during thirteen long months they knew neither shelter or protection from the changeable skies above or the pitiless, unfeeling earth beneath.

The treacherous nature of the soil, parching to seams in the sun, and gullying and sliding under their feet with every shower, must have augmented their ills almost beyond conception. I watched the effect of a heavy fall of rain upon the enclosed grounds, and in thirty minutes the entire hill sides, which had constituted their sole abiding place, were one rolling mass of slippery mud, and this the effect of a mere summer shower. What of the continued rains of autumn? Think of thirty thousand men penned in by a close stockade of twenty-six acres of ground, from which every tree and shrub had been uprooted for fuel to cook their scanty food, huddled, like cattle, without shelter or blanket, half-clad and hungry, with dreary night settling in, after a day of autumn rain. The hill tops would not hold them all, the valley was filled with the swollen brook; seventeen feet from the stockade ran the fatal dead line, beyond which no man might step and live. What did they do? I need not ask, "Where did they go?" for on the face of the whole green earth there was no place but this for them. But where did they place themselves? How did they live? Aye, how did they die? But this is only one feature of their suffering, and perhaps the lightest. Of the long dazzling months when gaunt famine stalked at noonday and pestilence walked by night, and upon the seamed and parching earth the cooling rains fell not, I will not trust me to speak. I scarce dare think. If my heart were strong enough to draw the picture, there are thousands upon thousands all through our land too crushed and sore to look upon it. But after this, whenever any man who has lain a prisoner within the stockade at Andersonville would tell you of his sufferings, how he fainted, scorched, drenched, hungered, sickened, was scoffed at, scourged, hunted and persecuted, though the tale be long and twice told, as you would have your own wrongs appreciated, your own woes pitied, your own cries for mercy heard, I charge you to listen and believe him. However definitely he may have spoken, know that he has not told you all. However strong he may have outlined, or deeply he may have colored his picture, know that the reality calls for a better light and a nearer view than your clouded distant gaze will ever get. And your sympathies need not be confined to Andersonville, while similar horrors glared in the sunny light and spotted the flower-girt garden fields of that whole desperate, misguided and bewildered people. Wherever stretched the form of a Union prisoner, there arose the signal for cruelty and the cry of agony, and there, day by day, grew the skeleton graves of the nameless dead.

But, braving and enduring all this, some thousands have returned to you. And you will bear with me, and these noble men will pardon me, while in conclusion, I speak one word of them.

The unparalleled severities of our four years' campaigns have told upon the constitutional strength even of the fortunate soldier who alone marched to the music of the Union, and slept only beneath the folds of the flag for which he fought. But they whom fickle fortune left to crouch at the foot of the shadowless palmetto, and listen to the hissing of the serpent, drank still deeper of the unhealthful draught. These men bear with them the seeds of disease and death, sown in that fatal clime and ripening for an early harvest. With occasional exceptions, they will prove to be short-lived and enfeebled men, and whether they ask it or not, will deserve at your hands no ordinary share of kindly consideration. The survivor of a Rebel prison has endured and suffered what you never can, and what, I pray God, your children may never have to. With loss of strength, and more of sad and bitter memories, he is with you now, to earn the food so long denied him. If he ask "leave of toil" give it to him before it is too late; if he need kindness and encouragement, bestow them freely, while you may; if he seek charity at your hands remember that "the poor you have always with you" but him you have not always, and withhold it not. If hereafter you find them making organized effort to provide for the widow and the orphan of the Union soldier, remember it grew out of the heart sympathy which clusters around the memories of the comrades who perished at their side, and a well-grounded apprehension for the future of their own, and aid them.

In conclusion, tremulously, lest I assume too much, let me hasten to commend to the grateful consideration of this noble, generous people alike the soldier who has given his strength, the prisoner who has sacrificed his health, the widow who has offered up her husband, the orphan who knows only that its father went out to the battle and comes no more forever, and the lonely distant grave of the martyr, who sleeps alone in the stranger soil, that freedom and peace might come to ours.

One word of explanation, in conclusion, and I have done. You have long and justly felt that some report of this expedition, embracing a record of the graves identified and reclaimed, was your due. And three thousand letters addressed to me upon the subject have revealed only too plainly and painfully the bitter anxiety with which you have watched and waited.

A mere report, unaccompanied by the "record," seemed but a hollow mockery, which I would not impose upon you, and this is my first opportunity for such accompaniment. For the record of your dead you are indebted to the forethought, courage and perseverance of Dorence Atwater, a young man not yet twenty-one years of age; an orphan, four years a soldier, one-tenth part of his whole life a prisoner, with broken health and ruined hopes, he seeks to present for your acceptance the sad gift he has in store for you; and, grateful for the opportunity, I hasten to place beside it this humble report, whose only merit is its truthfulness, and beg you to accept it in the spirit of kindness in which it is offered.

CLARA BARTON.

DORENCE ATWATER

BY HIS BROTHER, HON. FRANCIS ATWATER, NEW HAVEN, CONN.

AMONG the many private soldiers who by some gallant deed, or worthy act, have won for themselves a place in the historic record of their country, perhaps there is not one to whom as many thousand hearts throughout the entire land would so gratefully accord the page, and so lovingly embellish it with "immortelles," glistening with the tear drops of sad and tender memories, as the young soldier whose name stands at the head of this sketch — and a type of whose noble, and, it would almost seem, inspired work, follows it.

Dorence Atwater, the son of Henry and Catherine Fenn Atwater, was born at Terryville, Litchfield county, Conn., February 3, 1845, being the third in a family of eight children.

Inheriting from his mother an exceedingly active temperament, and from his father — who, though a mason by profession, was also a successful school teacher and justice of the peace — a rare degree of intelligence, integrity, and the early foundation for a good education, Dorence started in at the age of fourteen as clerk in a store and post-office, which position he occupied until August, 1861, when, at the age of sixteen, he enlisted in the Connecticut squadron which helped to form the famous regiment of Harris Light Cavalry, commanded by Colonel, afterward General, Kilpatrick. A soldier from choice, a bold rider, and knowing little of fear, it is natural to conclude that Atwater was never happier than when dashing into Richmond with Kilpatrick on his brilliant raid of May, 1862. But there was destined to come a day when he would enter the Rebel capital under circumstances less exhilarating, as a few days subsequent to the battle of Gettysburg, while bearing despatches to his general — with the last home letter in his pocket which brought the intelligence of the sudden death of his mother — he was captured and taken a prisoner to Richmond and Belle Isle. This was the beginning of misfortunes, the shadow of which, up to the end of his life, was never quite lifted from his pathway.

After five months of suffering and illness in Belle Isle, at the intercession of the adjutant of his regiment, also a captive in Richmond, and whose regimental clerk Atwater had been, he was taken to Richmond and detailed to take account of the supplies sent by the U. S. Government to its own men suffering in Rebel prisons.

Holding this position for some weeks, he was, in February, 1864, sent with the first detachment of prisoners to Andersonville. From the shelterless “stockade” in midwinter, to the scarcely better protected “old hospital” outside — three months more of fever, scurvy, and starvation, and again he was detailed to the Rebel surgeon’s office and set to keep the daily death record of his comrades, the Union prisoners, as score by score they perished by his side. He was now nineteen, and though wasted to a skeleton, naturally active and faithful, a clerk of no ordinary skill and experience, rendered thoughtful by suffering, tender by affliction, it would seem that he had been providentially fitted for the great work given him to do.

With a degree of judgment and forethought which would have done credit to a man of twice his years, he appears to have measured his task and comprehended its importance at the outset and directed every energy of both mind and body to its faithful accomplishment. Day by day, he watched the long trenches fill with the naked skeleton forms of the once sturdy Union blue — the pride of the American armies — and day by day he traced on the great brown pages of his Confederate sheet record the last and all that was ever to be known of the brave dead sleepers in their crowded, coffinless beds — the name, company, regiment, disease, date of death, and number of grave.

DORENCE ATWATER

Five more weary months of this; but when, in September, he found himself registering a hundred names a day, and saw sevenths of them followed by the word "scorbutus"—for although midsummer in a country teeming with vegetation, no green thing had been permitted to find its way inside that deadly palisade — Atwater came to the conclusion that a record which told so fearful a tale of wilful cruelty or design against the perpetrators would never be permitted to exist and pass into history; but that, in any case, whichever side might ultimately succeed, southern pride would compel the destruction of that record, and with it must pass forever from the page of the earth the last authentic information, in a majority of instances the last trace, of the fate of every man who perished in "Andersonville," leaving only anxiety, distress, the agony of suspense, and the darkness of oblivion to the thousands upon thousands of waiting mourners throughout the North. The loving memories of his own mother, whose last words had been of her soldier boys, clung tenderly about his heart, and his soul yearned for some means by which to save the thousands of other mothers from this needless agony of uncertainty worse than death, and he decided upon commencing a duplicate of his own record, upon separate sheets of paper which he managed to abstract, even going back of himself and gleaning all that he could of the first three months while he lay in stockade and hospital. Bringing his duplicate up to date in October, and concealing it from all eyes, both friend and foe, from that time he kept both his secret and his double record as he had at first kept the one, with little expectation of living to bring it away himself, but hoping that he might be enabled to pass it into the hands of some stronger comrade who could get it through our lines.

In February, 1865, it was decided to remove the prisoners from Andersonville to the region of Columbia, S. C., and Atwater, with a guard, was ordered to precede the main body and make ready his papers and records for the registry of the incoming dead. He left Andersonville on the 20th of February with his duplicate record concealed about his person, but before the journey was completed they were met by the news of the capture of Columbia by General Sherman; the destination was changed and Atwater was hurried away to Salisbury. Two days after his arrival came the earliest order for exchange and he chanced to be among the first 10,000 paroled at Wilmington. The middle of March, '65, found our boy captive of twenty-two months a paroled prisoner at Annapolis, with his record of the 13,000 dead of Andersonville, while as many thousand homes were shrouded in darkness, as many thousand families waited in agonized suspense for the unveiling of its fearful mysteries. So far, the boy's prophecies were proven and his sad dream realized, he had not miscalculated the terrible anxiety of the public, and chafed under his parole for liberty to give up his record to the people for whom alone he had kept it.

Then comes the story of his trouble with the Government, which had learned of his great work. At the time of his release from Andersonville, he had served twenty-two months since his capture. He went to his home in Terryville, Conn., a skeleton of his former self. He was taken down with diphtheria and lay at the point of death, but soon rallied, and before he had fully recuperated, had been summoned to Washington. His precious rolls were demanded for Government use, and, while he was anxious to publish them for the benefit of relatives and friends of the Andersonville victims, under threats of confiscation he consented his names should be copied. He then enlisted in the general service, U. S. A., and was detailed as a clerk in one of the departments at Washington.

The Government had copied his rolls but refused to return them. In July, 1865, he informed Secretary Stanton he could identify all of the graves at Andersonville if the work were undertaken immediately. The Secretary of War ordered the work performed and detailed Captain Moore and forty others, including Dorence, to go to Andersonville at once. Included in the party was Clara Barton, one of the world's greatest benefactors. The original rolls were also taken. Headboards were erected to the 13,000 martyrs and the party returned. Shortly after, the rolls were missed. No one knew where they were until Dorence was questioned when he promptly answered he had taken his property where he could find it, which he said the law allowed a man to do. He was told he could have twenty-four hours to return his rolls, but he said he was determined to keep them. He was then and there arrested, placed in the old capitol prison; was tried by court-martial and adjudged guilty, whereupon he was sent to Auburn State prison to serve at hard labor for eighteen months, fined $300, and to stand committed until the rolls were returned. He possessed the old Kentish spirit of never being conquered. In irons he was taken from Washington to Auburn, where he served for two months, when he was discharged without the formality of a pardon.

This came about because Secretary Stanton feared Gen. B. F. Butler was about to start an investigation which was demanded by newspapers all over the country, the most persistent of which was the New York Tribune. Upon the release of Dorence, his rolls were taken from their hiding-place, put in alphabetical order, and 25,000 copies printed by the Tribune Association and placed on the bookstands all over the country before the Government knew what was being done.

He was now in his twenty-first year, broken down in health, a victim of both the South and the North, and although he had been cruelly and unjustly punished so far as the Government was concerned, he was simply a discharged convict, released without the grace of a pardon. The Government recognized this in a slight way by giving him a consulship in the far-off Seychelles Islands, and later transferred him to the Society Islands in the South Pacific, where he served faithfully for twenty-six years. A few years ago the court-martial was set aside by Congress and he was given back the good name that should never have been taken away; but, so far as compensation goes, he never was given anything in recognition of his great service, nor was he even allowed a pension.

Do you wonder, years later, that in one of his letters he should remark, "The word soldier makes me mad, while the sight of a uniform makes me froth at the mouth." His self-imposed task, however, is appreciated by those whose loved ones rest at Andersonville, for they, at least, have the satisfaction of knowing the fate that befell them, that their graves have been preserved and identified, and in personal letters Dorence was given the thanks of those who valued his information. In all the intervening years he went on with his life work, uncomplaining, extending the good hand of fellowship, and when death came he went to sleep with a smile, just as forgiving as when he said his prayers at his mother's knee.

THE DEAD AT ANDERSONVILLE

INTRODUCTION BY DORENCE ATWATER

TO THE SURVIVING RELATIVES AND FRIENDS OF THE MARTYRED
"DEAD" AT ANDERSONVILLE, GA.:

THIS record was originally copied for you because I feared that neither you nor the Government of the United States would ever otherwise learn the fate of your loved ones whom I saw daily dying before me. I could do nothing for them, but I resolved that I would at least try and let you sometime know when and how they died. This, at least, I am now able to do.

So many conflicting rumors have been in circulation in regard to these rolls and myself, that I deem it prudent to give a brief statement of my entire connection with this DEATH REGISTER, and to show how and why it was so long withheld from you.

On the 7th day of July, 1863, I was taken prisoner near Hagerstown, Md., and taken to Belle Island, Richmond, Va., via Staunton, where I remained five months. I then went to Smith's tobacco factory, Richmond, where I kept the account of supplies received from our Government and issued to Federal prisoners of war. In the latter part of February, 1864, I was sent to Andersonville with a squad of four hundred other prisoners from Belle Island, arriving there on the first day of March. I remained inside the stockade until the middle of May, when I was sent to the hospital. On the 15th of June I was paroled and detailed as a clerk in Surgeon J. H. White's office to keep the daily record of deaths of all Federal prisoners of war. I also made monthly and quarterly abstracts of the deaths; the latter one was said to be for the Federal Government, which I have since learned was never received.

The appalling mortality was such that I suspected that it was the design of the Rebel Government to kill and maim our prisoners by exposure and starvation so that they would forever be totally unfit for military service and that they withheld these facts. Accordingly, in the latter part of August, 1864, I began to secretly copy the entire list of our dead, which I succeeded in doing, and brought it safely through the lines with me in 1865. Arriving at Camp Parole, at Annapolis, Md., I learned that I could not get a furlough on account of my term of service having expired some seven months before. I immediately wrote to the Secretary of War, asking for a furlough of thirty days, for the purpose of having my DEATH REGISTER published for the relief of the many thousand anxious in regard to the fate of their dead. Before an answer could have returned I received a furlough from the commandant of the camp. I then went to my home in Terryville, Conn., where I was taken sick the next day after my arrival, which confined me for three weeks. On the 12th of April, I received a telegram from the War Department, requesting me to come immediately to Washington and bring my rolls, and, if they were found acceptable, I should be suitably rewarded. I started the next day for Washington. Arriving there I went to the War Department and learned that the person (Colonel Breck) with whom I was to make arrangements was absent at the Fort Sumter celebration. I left my rolls with the chief clerk for safe keeping. In a day or two Colonel Breck returned and he informed me that the Secretary of War had authorized him to pay me three hundred dollars ($300) for the rolls. I told him I did not wish to sell the rolls, that they ought to be published for the benefit of the friends of the dead for whom chiefly they had been copied. He told me that if I went to publish them the Government would confiscate them, that I could have until 9 o'clock the next morning to decide whether I would take the three hundred dollars or not. The rolls were then in his possession. I told him if I could have a clerkship in the department, which he had described to me, three hundred dollars, and the rolls back as soon as copied, I should consider it satisfactory. To this he agreed. He then informed me that it would be necessary for me to enlist in the general service in order to get the clerkship. To this I objected, but in no other way was it available, and I accepted. I was mustered out of my original enlistment and given permission to visit home and return for duty by the 1st of June. While in New York in the latter part of May, I telegraphed Colonel Breck, asking if my rolls were copied, to which I received a reply, "Not yet."

Soon after my arrival in Washington in June, I called on Colonel Breck and asked the privilege of taking sheets of my rolls out after business hours to copy and return them the next morning. He said he would have to ask General Townsend's consent. I again met him in a few days; he told me he had been unable to see General Townsend. I then wrote to Colonel Breck asking if he did or did not intend to return my rolls, that I had promised that the rolls should be published for the benefit of the friends of the deceased. He returned my letter endorsed as follows: "I have fully explained the matter to General Townsend and he says the rolls shall not be copied for any traffic whatever." I had never spoken of trafficking in them; I only wished to give them to the people for whom I had copied them at some personal risk. Nothing more was said about the rolls until after my return from Andersonville in August.

Miss Clara Barton of Washington, D. C., upon learning the condition of the cemetery at Andersonville, and that the graves could be identified, had reported the facts to the Secretary of War, who ordered the necessary arrangements to be made for marking the graves. A party charged with this duty left Washington on the 8th day of July, consisting of Miss Clara Barton, Capt. J. M. Moore, myself, and forty-two letterers, painters and clerks, arriving in Andersonville on the 25th day of July.

Before leaving Washington it was found that the original register, captured by General Wilson, was deficient in one book containing about twenty-four hundred names, and my rolls were sent to supply this deficiency. The original was also found blurred and imperfect in many places, through want of care, and my rolls were frequently in the hands of all who had occasion to consult them and so came into my hands in the course of duty. They had been copied at Washington, according to my agreement with Colonel Breck, and were mine, and lawfully in my possession. I proposed to retain them and give them to you as soon as I could. I did not propose to injure any one, to do anything unlawful or improper with them, much less to traffic or speculate on the information they contained, but I did retain them. When the originals were needed in the Wirz trial at Washington, they and my copy were in my tent when the messenger arrived in Andersonville. He took the original and left my copy.

When we started home I placed these rolls with my other property in my trunk and brought them to Washington. Upon my arrival I reported to Colonel Breck at the War Department. He asked me if I knew where my rolls were. I said, "I have them; will you allow me to keep them, now you have them copied here." He told me, "We might as well come to an understanding about these rolls. This is the last conversation we shall have about them; if you will pay back three hundred dollars you can keep the rolls, otherwise you must return them." I asked him "if he did not agree to give them back when copied;" he said, "Yes, but you were going to set yourself up in business by publishing them, and we do not consider ourselves held to our agreement." I told him, "I had a right to publish them (if he called that setting myself up in business) and it was my duty to do so." I then turned to leave, intending to see Secretary Stanton. He said: "I infer you do not intend to give up the rolls." I said: "Not yet; I must go further to see about them." He said: "You will go to the 'old Capitol' if you do not give them up," and then sent for a guard and had me arrested. My room and trunk were searched, but the rolls could not be found. I was then put in the guardhouse for two days and then transferred to the "old Capitol Prison," and in a few days I was arraigned and tried by court-martial on the following charges and specifications:

Charge 1. Conduct prejudicial to good military discipline.

Charge 2. Larceny.

SPECIFICATIONS: In this that private Dorence Atwater, of the general service of the United States Army, did seize and unlawfully take from the tent or quarters of J. M. Moore, Assistant Quartermaster, U. S. Army, certain property of the United States then and there in the proper charge and custody of the said Captain J. M. Moore, to wit: a certain document, consisting of a list, written upon about twenty-four sheets of paper, of Federal prisoners of war who had died at Andersonville, Ga., the same having been prepared by the said Atwater while a prisoner of war at said Andersonville, and sold and disposed of by him to the United States for the sum and price of three hundred dollars, and did appropriate and retain the said property to his own use. This at Andersonville, Ga., on or about the 16th day of August, 1865.

I was convicted and sentenced as follows: "To be dishonorably discharged from the United States service, with loss of all pay and allowances now due; to pay a fine of three hundred dollars; to be confined at hard labor for the period of eighteen months, at such place as the Secretary of War may direct; to furnish to the War Department the property specified in the second specification as the property stolen from Captain J. M. Moore, and stand committed at hard labor until the said fine is paid and the said stolen property is furnished to the War Department."

On the 26th day of September I arrived at Auburn State prison, New York, where I remained over two months at hard labor, when I was released under a general pardon of the President of the United States.

I reached New Haven, Conn., on the following day, and learned that the record had not been furnished you. I immediately set about preparing it for publication and have arranged to have it printed and placed within your reach at the cost of the labor of printing and material, having no means by which to defray these expenses myself.

I regret that you have waited so long for information of so much interest to you.

DORENCE ATWATER.
