For Three Generations This Institution Has Specialized in War Memorials*

THE CREATION of a memorial in classic form of granite, marble or bronze is the sincerest expression of lasting memory to the departed.

Simplicity of design rather than ornateness, characterizes the Modern Muldoon Memorial.

This institution is now erecting memorials for the third generation of many leading families throughout the country and this is a testimonial of the excellent reputation we enjoy for integrity.

The large volume of business annually transacted, together with new and modern manufacturing facilities, enables us to promptly supply your needs in a most economical manner.

Of all things that one purchases in a life time the most in permanency and endurance is expected of the family memorial. Its material and construction ought to be of the most perfect character to withstand the test of time. Economy of the quality of these things invariably leads to disappointment of the keenest nature. Muldoon Memorials are made of the best materials only and their workmanship is unexcelled.

In a sincere endeavor to merit your patronage it will be our pleasure to submit plans and estimates for your family memorial.

Ask us to place in your hands special information of this nature and to facilitate our doing so, explain the size and arrangement of the family lot.

An accurate comparison of the values of designs and materials is impossible to the layman who seldom is familiar with the technique of the industry of Modern Memorial Art and the best results will be obtained in your family memorial if you will place your entire confidence in the honesty and service of the long tested record of this institution.

Erected by Muldoon Monument Company

THIS institution for many years has co-operated with prominent sculptors and architects in the creation of public memorials. The General Castleman equestrian statue, illustrated above, is only one example of a large number of our interesting public memorials located in many cities throughout the entire country. As a matter of reference a partial list of public memorials will be found on page 74.

*Erected to the Memory of
the Founder of Our Institution*

COMING to Kentucky as a young man, Colonel Muldoon settled in Louisville, and in 1855 started the memorial work which was destined to make him one of the leading craftsmen of the age. The extent of our success as a large institution today attests to the value of those policies of integrity, careful thought, and sincere service in the introduction of which he was a pioneer.

This splendid and dignified Celtic cross is thirty feet high and one of the finest cross memorials in the world. It is erected in Cave Hill Cemetery in Louisville.

CONTRARY to the first impression of many of our prospective patrons, Muldoon Memorials are not the costly impossible to the family of moderate means.

Working along the commercial lines of a great American automobile manufacturer, engineers employed by our firm have made an extensive study of our manufacturing problem. The handling of a large volume of materials annually has been simplified by installing huge cranes, derricks and various other types of modern cost-saving machinery. Efficiency and economy of effort is a keynote in our factories. Cutting work on the hardest of materials that once took days of labor by hand is now done in an equal number of hours by perfected electrical and compressed air machinery.

Our national sales organization is now obtaining contracts, retail, for several thousand memorials per year. This volume of business has brought up our total income so that the overhead expense on any one memorial is only a very small percentage.

The grouping method of setting five or six memorials in one locality at the same time so minimizes the expense of our expert setters that this item of cost is negligible. All Muldoon Memorials are carefully placed complete on the purchaser's cemetery lot by our own trained experts.

Keeping fully abreast of the progress of our economical manufacturing development, our designing department has become trained and skilled in the detail of their work. Muldoon designs are now second to none and their individuality appeals to all people of discriminating taste.

It therefore can be readily appreciated that if you will order your memorial direct from our factories you will obtain a design of the finest character at the lowest cost competent with your needs.

The modest headstone of thirty dollars, the medium-sized monument of a few hundred dollars, or the costly memorial of thousands of dollars, demand and obtain our most thoughtful attention and we respectfully state that we would enjoy your patronage in whatever your needs may be.

Write to us explaining the arrangement and size of your family lot together with the approximate amount of money you wish to expend and we will forward, without obligation, a carefully prepared choice of three special designs to help you in your selection.

Louisville, Kentucky*

FOR SEVERAL thousand years before the birth of Christ the cross in various forms was a pagan emblem. Not until the fifth century did the cross become a Christian symbol standing for Christ's redemption.

In Muldoon Cemetery Memorials the two forms of crosses mostly used are the Latin cross in the Calvary form and the Celtic cross, the latter being originally derived, probably from the placing of the nimbus through the Cross of Calvary and various refinements, the natural outgrowth of the skill of the artist.

In choosing the Latin form of cross for a modern cemetery memorial to symbolize a Christian people, particular care should be given toward developing the design in the Calvary form or the cross will merely be a pagan emblem and lacking in the desired Christian significance. The Calvary form is determined by the relative size of the horizontal arms to the shaft itself and the perpendicular extension above the crossing.

The second form of Christian cross extensively used is the Celtic cross, which was developed under the art that flourished in Ireland up to 1500 A.D. Some of these Celtic crosses also appear in Scotland. The principal characteristic of the Celtic cross is the application of the nimbus (symbolic of the halo about the Savior's head) drawn around through the cross arms and shaft. There is no particular regularity of the proportions of the horizontal arms to the shaft and perpendicular arm in the Celtic cross.

THE W. W. HIGGINS Memorial Shaft recently erected by us in Chicago, Illinois, is colossal in size and the accompanying illustration shows the great preparation in equipment used by Muldoon Mastercraftsmen in handling the enormous blocks of granite aggregating 96 tons in weight.

A conception of the size of this great obelisk can be appreciated by the comparison to the size of the workman shown in the illustration.

None but the best and most modern time-saving machinery and equipment are used by our technical men in all departments, thereby assuring safety and economy to our clients.

After the equipment was placed in position this gigantic obelisk was lifted from the ground and set complete in position in the record breaking time of five hours.

THE MACKY mausoleum, erected by Muldoon in New York City, is one of the largest and finest family tombs in this country. The beautiful interior altar and chapel are developed in a color plan of polished marble, the material for which was collected from all parts of the world. The twenty-two catacombs are set in heavy bronze frames and each is concealed by a special inlaid marble panel. The interior colored glass mosaic dome is a rare work of art that none but the best artisans could accomplish. The architecture of the building is an example of the Renaissance Period. The main roof stone is one piece, and is the largest single piece of granite that has ever been quarried.

MUCH might be written about the detailed structure of the mausoleum, but since it is the motive of this booklet, only in a general way, to introduce Muldoon Memorials and Mausoleums to prospective clients, a technical analysis will not be given here.

The word Mausoleum is derived from the name of King Mausolus. Artemisia, his wife, erected the wonderful structure at Halicarnassus in which his remains were entombed above ground level. This structure was completed about 340 B.C. and the plan of its conception has been emulated by people of every land since that time.

The Modern Muldoon Mausoleums are usually constructed of cubical shape, having a bronze door on one face and a lobby running through the building with an art glass window in the wall opposite to the door. The catacomb construction is placed on each side of the lobby and the number of catacombs vary in multiples of two. On some occasions the depth of the building is increased to allow a T-shaped lobby or the plan of the structure may be developed to allow the caskets to be placed in lateral catacombs in wings of the building. Muldoon Mausoleums are always lined on the interior with polished marble carefully selected for its artistic color effect.

The greatest care and detailed study is given to each of our mausoleum designs by our architectural and engineering departments. Only the finest of materials are used and the structure is assembled on the ground by our factory-trained experts in such a way that it will withstand the most severe tests of the elements for thousands of years to come.

Ask our designing department to place before you illustrations and estimates for your family mausoleum. We will be glad to explain our proposals in details and illustrate how our large annual volume of business in all parts of the country makes it possible for us to supply your needs in the most economical and efficient manner possible.

THE ROBINSON SEPULCHRE, erected in Manitowoc, Wisconsin, is one of the finest originally designed memorials in America. The beautiful superstructure developed in the Tuscan order of architecture lends a touch of refinement and quiet dignity to this type of mausoleum that is quite lacking in the usual composition.

The marble-lined catacombs constructed in the interior are above ground level, amply ventilated by a special system and protected by heavy interior double walls in such a way that the edifice will remain intact for thousands of years.

The entire work was designed, manufactured and erected under the skillful supervision of Muldoon Mastercraftsmen.

ERECTED 1928 FORT WAYNE, IND.

THE HUMAN mind is and always has been a willing subject for hero worship to a greater or less degree in accordance with the emotional character of the individual. This characteristic of the human mind has been the ideal by which empires have been builded as well as the freedom of nations preserved.

Great American men dedicated and sacrificed their lives in peace time and their bodies in war that we might live in independent peace and enjoy the prosperity and happiness of our present environment. It is not strange that we should have, and each of us does have, a hero worship for them. Because of this hero worship, the inspiration for which is largely taught by our public memorials, we in our time are subconsciously dedicated to emulate them. In times of national danger, with the picture of their deeds before us, we rush forward to do as they did. Without these characteristics even in our present generation, we would undoubtedly have been trod under the iron hoof of the war horse, and without these same characteristics in the generations of our people to come, they may indeed face a collapse of all those conditions of freedom, prosperity and happiness that we now enjoy to live in.

Modern Muldoon Public and War Memorials are especially designed to send the messages of loyal Americanism resounding on through the ages that men who come after may be inspired in their patriotism and self-sacrifice if need be, even as those who have gone before, toward the end that the nation may live.

A Muldoon War Memorial in Paintsville, Kentucky

SERENE confidence is at once the most striking impression created by this quiet and dignified World War memorial. The Sculptured figure seems to breathe a prayer of thanksgiving for peace after victory in a just cause and proclaims that the Sword of Justice will be drawn only in defense of the weak and oppressed. The dimly outlined cross recalls to mind the graves of those comrades who paid the supreme sacrifice. The central tablet supported by simple massive bases and flanked by a graceful balustrade completes a most pleasing composition. This memorial, designed in our studios, is a typical example of the Modern Muldoon War Memorial. It was recently erected by Johnson County Post No. 117 American Legion at Paintsville, Ky.

Chicago, Illinois*

FASCINATING in its quickly apparent material proof of the greatest skill of the hands of man, the sculptured memorial will always express the deepest emotions without recourse to the spoken or written word.

Originating in Egypt, developed to its highest perfection by the Greeks and handed down through the Romans, the art of sculpture is one of our greatest inheritances of civilization.

Sculpture originated and experienced its greatest development in the religious worship of man-made images. The earlier pagan religions contained many deities and it was necessary to materialize these deities in visible form. In this task man developed the art of sculpture until it became the greatest material accomplishment of the skill of human hands. In later periods of time this form of art became devoted to the creations of tributes of memory to the departed.

Muldoon Sculptured Memorials of granite, marble and bronze are everywhere apparent in the better cemeteries of America and they gain favor as our modern skill advances.

In planning a sculptured memorial in the Muldoon designing studios, it is customary to first model the desired effect in clay from which plaster casts are made and submitted to the client before the actual work on the memorial itself is started. At the heading of this article appears an illustration of the plaster model of Masonic emblem that was later delicately and perfectly reproduced in granite in the freeze ornament of the Higgins memorial shaft illustrated on page 60.

Hundreds of themes for expression, ranging from the modest floral ornament to the material symbolism of Gabriel and The Resurrection are available for choice in Modern Muldoon Sculptured Memorials, and should your taste incline in this direction, the skill and long experience of our institution in accomplishing beautiful memorials of this kind should merit your esteemed patronage.

OCCASIONALLY it is the desire to mark two graves, husband and wife, separately without the central monument on the family plot.

An interesting set of special Muldoon designs of "double markers", of which the above is an example, is available for your choice if this plan is to be followed.

The illustration below shows a flat plate marker set flush with the ground that can be used to mark individual graves. This type of Muldoon Marker is often used to avoid obstructing the artistic setting of the central monument.
