Rodman Cannons

There are two similar 8 inch Rodman guns, M1861 - one in the cemetery and one on the courthouse square. The one at Sunset Rest Cemetery is in a nice setting on a little rise. It was cast in 1865 at Seyfert, McManus & Co. of Reading, PA. It is a very large cannon - 8485 pounds. The location is in the NW part of town with the entrance at 3rd Avenue and 3rd Street. The cannon is in the NW part of the cemetery. The GPS reading is based on this cannon.

The one on the courthouse square has a sign that implies that it was manufactured at the Northwood Foundry; however, it was cast at the Fort Pitt Foundry in Pittsburg in 1864 while only the carriage was actually manufactured here. This cannon weighs 8520 pounds and has a cannonball in the bore. The courthouse is located east of the business district. Photos taken 6/17/20 - the smaller photos taken 3/14/08.

The final image is an old undated postcard showing one of the cannon then located in City Park. Thanks to Danny Krock for providing this copy.
